Stalin Order Warns Army Not to Be 'Complacent'

Message Issued on Anniversary of 1917 Revolution Hits at Forces of 'Reaction'

London, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—A Russian order of the day issued in the name of Premier Josef Stalin as generalissimo warned the armed forces of the Soviet Union tonight:

"The absence of a war threat at present must not make us complacent."

All Soviet forces, army, navy and air force, were called on to study military technique.

"The Soviet order has shown in the war years its superiority over the capitalist order," the statement said.

Issued in the name of the minister for the armed forces—Stalin—the order of the day was signed by Gen. Nikolai A. Bulganin as deputy minister.

On Bolshevik Anniversary

The order was broadcast on the eve of the twenty-ninth anniversary of the 1917 revolution which put the Bolsheviks in power.

"We hope that a just democratic peace will be established and will last in spite of the efforts of international reaction . . . ," it declared.

It was added that the peace-loving policy of the Soviet Union was "met with joy by peoples all over the world."

The fact that Stalin himself did not sign the order, and that he did not attend a big anniversary-eve celebration in Moscow, caused speculation here that he might be vacationing on the Black Sea.

Andrei A. Zhdanov, Communist chieftain, took Stalin's place at the celebration.

U. S. Called Reactionary

Zhdanov, one of the inner circle of the Communist Party political bureau which rules Russia and one of Premier Stalin's closest advisers, spoke to a cheering crowd at Moscow's big Bolshoi Theater.

"Soviet foreign policy is clear and definite," Zhdanov said. "It is the policy of strengthening friendship among freedom loving nations . . . to establish lasting peace, a peace in which no aggressor will remain unpunished.

". . . But this policy finds organized persistance from reactionary states, among them Britain and the United States.

"Antidemocratic tendencies cropped up in the Trieste and Danube River discussions at the Paris Peace Conference. . . . The principle of the equality of nations also was violated.

"The Paris Conference showed two tendencies, one policy, that of the Soviet Union, is to carry out fully the principles of the U. N. to consolidate peace and prevent aggression. The other tendency is that of reactionary circles."

Increased Propaganda Charged

"Anti-Soviet propaganda abroad has increased lately," Zhdanov continued. "Many newspapers in the United States and Britain have specialized in propagating hatred and distrust of the Soviet Union. Henry Wallace said recently that for every inch of anti-United States material in Russian papers there are 1000 inches of anti-Soviet material in the United States press. One can not disagree with this. . . .

"A recent Gallup Poll showed

Army's B-36 Can Carry A-Bomb to Any World Target

The Army air forces said last night its new six-engine B-36 bomber "could carry an atomic bomb to any inhabited region in the world and return home without refueling in the event of an enemy attack."

An official statement giving details of the bomber, which has been described as the world's largest, said production had started at the Consolidated-Vultee plant at Fort Worth, Tex.

The plane is designed for a normal range of 10,000 miles with 10,000 pounds of bombs without extra fuel tanks. At an undisclosed reduced range, the Air Forces said it could carry 36 tons, more than three times the capacity for the same distance of the B-29, from which the atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Step Out for a Republican, Fulbright Advises Truman

White House Silent On Amazing Plan for Presidential Switch

Democrat Suggests He Appoint GOP Secretary of State

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, facing the prospect of a Republican Congress for the next two years, returned to Washington from Missouri yesterday as a member of his own party suggested that he resign.

The proposal came from Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), who said that Mr. Truman ought to make way for a Republican in order to avoid a two-year stalemate between a Republican Congress and a Democratic President.

There being no Vice President, Fulbright suggested that Mr. Truman resign after naming a Republican as Secretary of State and thus putting him in the line of succession. The Arkansas Democrat said that Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who has been an adviser to Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, would be the logical man.

No comment came from the White House on the amazing proposal.

Friends of President Truman,

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP).—President Truman should resign and give the Republicans complete Government control by appointing one of them Secretary of State to succeed him, United States Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) suggested today in the wake of the GOP election sweep.

Fulbright made it clear, however, that he was "only suggesting."

"I am only suggesting that it would be the best thing for the country as a whole.

"It probably would be the wisest thing for the President to do."

The White House in Washington had no immediate comment.

Fulbright said in an interview that "if President Truman resigns, it will place the responsibility of running the Government on one party and prevent a stalemate that is likely to occur."

"By appointing a Republican Secretary of State and then resigning, he will be acting in a perfectly legal, constitutional manner. The Constitution provides for the Secretary of State to succeed the

Italy and Slavs Both Reject Frontier Pact

Big Four Adjourns Until Friday After Hearing Nations' Pleas

New York, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Italian and Yugoslav plenipotentiaries told the Big Four Foreign Ministers today that their countries will not accept the proposed Italian-Yugoslav frontier and the Trieste international zone as now planned.

Alberto Tarchiani, Italian Ambassador at Washington, said that his country would not "voluntarily accept" the Italian peace treaty in its present form—an implied threat that the Italian constituent assembly or parliament would refuse to ratify it even if it was signed by Italian delegates.

Stanjoe Simic, Yugoslav Foreign Minister, calling the treaty "inacceptable," said that his country's view was the same as at the Paris Peace Conference, where Yugoslavs announced they would not sign the treaty unless it was altered in their favor.

Adjourn Until Friday

"The proposed frontier is a cruel mutilation of the patrimony of the Italian people," Tarchiani said. "We cannot actively contribute to a settlement of our eastern frontier in which we do not believe and which we cannot voluntarily accept because of its human injustice, its practical inefficiency, its denial of democratic principles and its failure to carry out the hopes held forth to all nations by the Atlantic Charter."

The Big Four, meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, adjourned until Friday, after hearing the final treaty pleas of Italy and Yugoslavia, in order that Russian Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov might fittingly celebrate the twenty-ninth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. He is to attend an anniversary-eve observance here tonight and a big one at the Russian Embassy in Washington tomorrow.

Molotov was the only one of the Big Four to comment on the Italian and Yugoslav statements. Though Russia has consistently supported the Yugoslavs, Molotov said that both statements made a

Commodities, Stocks Drop in Election Wake

Securities Boom, Then 'Bust' Under Selling Avalanche

New York, Nov. 6 (INS).—A wide-open break in stocks, on the heels of an acute sinking spell in commodities, gave the Nation's financial markets one of their worst days of the year today in the wake of Tuesday's elections.

Leading issues on the New York Stock Exchange tumbled one to more than six points, after an overnight accumulation of buying orders, attracted by news of the GOP landslide, had started the market off on a boom note.

Commodities were outstandingly weak, with wheat in Chicago declining the maximum permissible 5 cents a bushel, and cotton on the New York and New Orleans exchanges cracking the top allowable limit of $10 a bale.

Wall Street was undecided whether to blame the break in stocks on the weakness in commodities or disappointment over the failure of bullish groups to step in when the first flush of public buying enthusiasm had spent itself.

At the same time, it was noted that the market had already anticipated the GOP triumph with a pre-election rally of 13 points in the last five sessions, so that part of today's pressure could be attributed to the adage of "selling on the good news."

Another disturbing note was sounded in London, where securities weakened following the warning in the House of Commons by the British minister of overseas trade that a world slump is on the way.

When stocks began to encounter resistance on the upside, the selling gained momentum and forced the ticker to fall behind shortly before the close.

Among ranking investment favorites particularly hard hit were duPont, off 6½; Eastman Kodak, 6; Chrysler, 5½; General Foods, 3⅝; General Motors, 3⅛; Atchison, 4½; Atlantic Coast Line, 3½; Great Northern preferred, 4, and American Smelting, 3¼.

The Dow-Jones industrial averages were off 5.52 points, rails 2.48 points and the utilities 1.18 points.

Sweeney Trails by 3000 Votes

Kilgore Leads in West Virginia With GOP Threatening Contest

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—With United States Senator Harley M. Kilgore leading by around 3000 votes in one of the closest senatorial contests in West Virginia's history, victory-flushed Republicans indicated tonight they would contest his election.

"We concede nothing and plan to see this thing through," asserted National Republican Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan as the unofficial tabulation neared an end with Kilgore leading Republican Thomas B. Sweeney, 43-year-old Wheeling resident who ran against the senator in 1940.

Neither Kilgore nor Sweeney offered any comment.

In congressional contests, three Democratic incumbents fell by the wayside while Republican Representative Hubert S. Ellis apparently won reelection in the fourth district, thus giving his party a majority in West Virginia's congressional delegation for the first time since 1930.

The Democrats won all six congressional seats in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, and only once since then have the Republicans staged a comeback to just an even footing of a ratio of three-to-three.

Democrats surviving the Republican sweep were the veteran John

U. S. Ready For U. N. Isle Trusteeship

Truman Proposal Provides Nation Would Retain an Administrator Role

President Truman announced yesterday the United States is ready to place under United Nations trusteeship all Japanese-owned and mandated islands now under American control providing this country retains the administering authority.

Mr. Truman said in a statement the United States already has completed a draft of a proposed "strategic area" trusteeship pact for the mandated islands—the Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas—and will lay it before the U. N. Security Council at an early date.

In the meantime, it is being sent to the other 10 members of the Council and to New Zealand and the Philippines for their consideration.

Presumably Not Completed

Presumably, the Government has not yet worked out a draft for trusteeship of former Japanese islands which were not mandated to Japan by the League of Nations. These include such groups as Marcus, the Bonins, the Volcano Islands and the Ryukyus. Mr. Truman's announcement indicated however this would soon be forthcoming.

Government officials familiar with the United Nations Charter singled out "strategic area" as the key words in the Truman announcement. They said this made it plain that the United States is determined to retain administration over the Japanese-owned and mandated islands for security purposes, despite its willingness to place them formally under U. N. trusteeships.

Under the U. N. Charter, territories set up as "strategic area" trusteeships are organized under the all-powerful Security Council whereas nonstrategic areas are set up under the U. N. Trusteeship Council.

Text of Statement

The text of the President's statement:

"The United States is prepared to place under trusteeship, with the United States as the administering authority, the Japanese mandated islands and any Japanese islands for which it assumes responsibilities as a result of the second World War. Insofar as the Japanese mandated islands are concerned, this Government is transmitting for information to the other members of the Security Council (Australia, Brazil, China, Egypt, France, Mexico, The Netherlands, Poland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United Kingdom) and to New Zealand and the Philippines a draft of a strategic area trusteeship agreement which sets forth the terms upon which this Government is prepared to place those islands under trusteeship. At an early date we plan to submit this draft agreement formally to the Security Council for its approval."

Holds Edge Of 1934 Over Markey

9 Polling Places Still Unreported; Republicans Make No Concessions Yet

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—Herbert R. O'Conor, Maryland's Democratic Governor and perennially victorious veteran of many political battles, apparently became a United States Senator-elect today but by a margin so narrow that it kept his supporters on tenterhooks through 24 hours of vote counting.

O'Conor's unofficial total with only 9 polling places missing was 1934 votes ahead of Republican D. John Markey of Frederick County.

This compared with the sweeping 45,514 piled up by William Preston Lane, jr., Hagerstown attorney and Democratic national committeeman, over Republican Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore in the race for Governor.

The vote in 1321 of 1330 polling places was:

O'Conor 235,771, Markey 233,837.
Lane 263,319, McKeldin 217,745.

Markey Does Not Concede

There were no concessions from Markey headquarters and it appeared that the official tabulation, which begins tomorrow, would be necessary to make certain of an O'Conor victory.

Campaign headquarters for Governor-elect O'Conor issued the following statement at 8:15 tonight.

"Based upon all available returns and the information communicated to this headquarters from all parts of the State, it is our definite belief that Governor O'Conor has been elected to the U. S. Senate.

"It seems apparent that the lead maintained by the Governor throughout the counting will be continued and that the official returns will assure his victory."

The Free State did not remain entirely in the Democratic column, for it reelected one Republican Congressman, seated one new Republican Congressman and reduced Democratic majorities in the State Legislature.

Miller Defeats Roe

Edward T. Miller of Easton, attorney and veteran of two wars, defeated Representative Dudley G. Roe in the First District, made up of the nine counties on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Representative J. Glen Beall, Frostburg Republican, was reelected from the Sixth District in western Maryland, a traditionally Republican area. He defeated Arch McDonald of Burnt Mills Hills, a Washington radio announcer.

Democrats who held their seats were Representatives Thomas D'Alesandro, Third; George H. Fallon, Fourth, and Lansdale G. Sasscer, Fifth. Hugh A. Meade, Baltimore, was the Democratic victor in the Second District for the seat held by H. Streett Baldwin, who was an unsuccessful aspirant for the gubernatorial nomination.

15 GOP Chairmen

Vandenberg, Taft Due to Head Important Senate Committees

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Fifteen senior Republicans are slated for the chairmanships of the streamlined Senate committees set up by the Reorganization Act.

Only three of them ever sat in a Senate controlled by their party. They are Capper of Kansas, Vandenberg of Michigan and White of Maine.

All the rest took their seats during the 14 years of Democratic rule, but have held them long enough to rank in the top 15, who will get the powerful chairmanships under the seniority rule.

The rule is one of custom and not of law. The majority party, through its Committee on Committees and party conference, may choose the chairmen any way it wishes. However, there is not much chance that the old system will be put aside.

There are 33 Senate committees now—some of them with little or nothing to do. When reorganization goes into effect on January 3, the Senate is due to have 15 streamlined committees, with 13 members apiece, and all with important duties.

The Agriculture and Forestry Committee probably will be headed by the 81-year-old Capper, dean of the Republicans, who came to the Senate March 4, 1919, in Woodrow Wilson's Administration. As senior Republican, Capper has his choice of three of the new committees—Foreign Relations, District and Agriculture, but his long standing interest in farm matters makes it likely he will take the last.

That would leave the Foreign Relations chairmanship open to Vandenberg, who took his seat in 1928. Vandenberg is the senior Republican on four other committees, but his role as party spokesman on foreign affairs makes it almost sure he will choose that post.

White, who came to the Senate in 1929, will likely choose the chairmanship of Interstate and Foreign Commerce, rather than Appropriations, where he also is the senior Republican.

This would open the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee to Bridges of New Hampshire—who took his seat in 1937. Bridges also is senior Republican on the Armed Service Committee, but he is said to prefer the key man on expenditures.

The next five on the Republican list are Gurney of South Dakota, Reed of Kansas, Taft of Ohio,

Knutson Plans 20% Slash in Income Taxes

Minnesotan Slated To Be Chairman of Ways, Means Group

By the Associated Press

A 20 per cent—three billion dollars—slash in 1947 individual income taxes was forecast yesterday by Representative Knutson (Minn.), slated to be Republican chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

Moreover, Knutson said, the Republican majority will press through a separate bill cutting back the excise tax list, which includes liquor, jewelry, furs, cosmetics and a long list of other items.

Reelected, the bald, stubby Minnesotan is expected to succeed Robert L. Doughton, 83-year-old North Carolina Democrat, as chairman of the tax-framing House committee.

But the Republican revenue-slicing drive may plunge head-on into a presidential veto.

Silent on Corporation Taxes

The Democratic Administration is committed to a high tax program, contending that stiff rates are essential to balance the budget and begin payments on the 262 billion dollar national debt.

A two-thirds vote in both the House and Senate would be necessary to override, if President Truman exercises his veto power.

Knutson made no mention of corporation taxes in a statement telephoned from his Minnesota home. He said:

"There will be two tax bills in 1947. The day the Eightieth Congress convenes I will introduce a bill providing for a 20 per cent cut in the individual income taxes effective for the calendar year 1947. It should be passed immediately.

"The second 1947 tax bill, on which public hearings will start early in February, will be directed to the elimination of some and downward adjustment of other excise taxes and to urgent administrative amendments to the present revenue code. Several of the changes in excise taxes should become effective July 1, 1947."

A battle royal already is in the making on tax revisions.

Doughton has insisted on a pol-

Europe Fears U.S.-Soviet Rift To Be Widened

British Press Worries Over Possible Tariff Changes Under GOP

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 6.—European reaction to the American election result centered tonight on the fear that it would sharpen differences between the United States and Russia.

On the Continent most editorial comment on the Republican sweep was concerned with its effect on international politics, but in Britain the press fretted over what the landslide might mean in terms of tariffs and economics. Two British evening papers called the election "a swing to the right" and a "triumph of reaction."

In general, most commentators agreed the American trend was in the opposite direction from that in European countries, many of which have swung to the left in recent postwar elections.

Russians Not Greatly Surprised

In the four-power capital of Berlin, diplomatic sources expressed the belief that Russia would find the Republican victory another evidence that the United States was even less likely to compromise than before.

"The election sharpens the differences that already have become

Veterans Ignore Eviction Notices in Seized Apartments

Chicago, Nov. 6 (INS).—The families of 54 veterans who seized the keys to as many vacant apartments in a Chicago Housing Authority project continued moving in tonight with every apparent intention of staying, despite eviction notices parceled out by the CHA.

Several optimistic veterans already have applied for telephones.

The CHA, apparently was in some doubt as to how to evict the veterans. Yesterday it asked police to act, but Police Commissioner Prendergast made it clear he considered the matter none of his business unless the "squatters" caused trouble.

Leaders Give Reaction:

Ban Partisanship, Says Dewey; Pepper Pessimistic on Future

By the Associated Press

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, whose near 700,000-vote plurality in New York pushed him to the fore in 1948 Republican presidential speculation, keynoted GOP statements yesterday with a call to "put aside partisanship and resolve to work together."

Statements from other Republican leaders regarded as possibilities in the 1948 presidential scramble included:

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio—"under Republican leadership we can sit down calmly and work out the constructive measures necessary for peace, for full employment under private enterprise and for social welfare, while leaving the people free to run their own affairs."

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, reelected to the Senate from Michigan by a one-sided margin—Republicans "confront a great responsibility, but I feel confident we are prepared to meet it." Vandenberg also viewed the returns as an "unmistakable indorsement" of the bi-partisan foreign policy.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota—"I am confident that the new Senators and Congressmen who are predominantly young, progressive Republicans, will meet

Even Larger Majorities Expected in Final Count

Leaders of Party Move to Assume Responsibility in Split Government

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Republican House and Senate aligned by controlling majorities against a Democratic President is the overwhelming voters' choice.

Tuesday GOP landslide rolled into its second day, with these results:

A six-vote Senate Republican majority assured, with Republican control of at least 51 Senate seats.

A Republican House majority of more than 48 votes, with 242 House GOP seats sure, and further gains indicated.

The outlook was for even larger majorities, with three close Senate races still unresolved and 11 House contests inconclusive. Democratic Senate seats were still in doubt in West Virginia, New Mexico and Maryland.

Move to Take Responsibility

Republican leaders across the Nation moved to assume the vast political responsibility the American voter had dropped in their lap.

In Columbus, Ohio, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), summoned a meeting of the Senate Republican Steering Committee, which he now heads, to recommend a plan of action. Taft's Senate Republican policy group will meet in Washington November 14.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.), the next Speaker, previously had called House Republican steersmen here for November 18. Martin plannd a further prep meeting with Republican Representatives-elect in December.

Not until the Eightieth Congress convenes, on January 3, will Republicans exercise their new power franchise, good for a two-year Congress run at the minimum.

Nor will President Truman's troubles be over with the organization of an officially hostile Congress and the start of a new GOP legislative cycle.

A fight between the Northern and Southern wings of his own shrunken party over which will control "minority" policies is now in the offing.

From Texas, Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) wired his congratulations to GOP Leader Martin. He announced, as friends have long known, that he has no desire to serve a minority leader when he steps down from the Speaker's dais.

Rayburn's decision left House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), a champion of the more progressive policies of both Roosevelt and Truman, the logical choice for minority floor leader.

Jointly Answerable

Some Southern Democrats, however, talked of exercising their proportionately bigger control of the party resulting from Tuesday's election. One group talked of running Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.) against McCormack. Barden was a leader of the Dixie rebel bloc which revolted against Truman policies in the last election.

Belatedly acknowledging the GOP sweep, Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan meanwhile warned the Republican Party of its "great responsibility."

"With the Democratic Administration, it is jointly answerable to the people for a program to establish peace in the world and con-

Senate Contests Summarized

UNITED STATES SENATE

Senators are being elected this year in 35 States, including Maine which elected a Republican September 9. Seats in the next (eightieth) and later congresses to be filled totaled 36, and two seats in the present (seventy-ninth) Congress also will be filled as follows:

By constitutional provision, for full term beginning January 3, 1947, and ending January 3, 1953, (32) seats now held by: Democrats 21; Republicans 10; Progressive 1.

To fill unexpired terms, in the Seventy-ninth and later congresses (4) seats now held by: Democrats 3; Republicans 1, as follows:

IDAHO: Term of the late John Thomas, Republican, ending January 3, 1949 (now held by appointment by Charles C. Gossett, Democrat).

ALABAMA: Term of the late John H. Bankhead, Democrat, ending January 3, 1949 (now held by appointment by G. R. Swift, Democrat).

VIRGINIA: Term of the late Carter Glass, Democrat, ending January 3, 1949 (now held by appointment by Thomas G. Burch, Democrat).

KENTUCKY: Term of A. B. Chandler, Democrat, resigned, ending January 3, 1949 (now held by appointment by William A. Stanfill, Republican).

To fill unexpired terms in Seventy-ninth Congress only:

CONNECTICUT: Term of Francis Maloney, Democrat, deceased, ending January 3, 1947 (now held by appointment by Thomas C. Hart, Republican).

OHIO: Term of Harold H. Burton, Republican, resigned, ending January 3, 1947 (now held by appointment by James W. Huffman, Democrat).

Political classification of seats not affected by this year's elections: Democrats 32; Republicans 28. Total 60.

Political classification of the present (Seventy-ninth) Congress: Democrats 56; Republicans 39; Progressive 1. Total membership 96. Necessary for a majority 49.

Political affiliation of incumbent is indicated at left under State name.

Willard Day Resigns in Montgomery

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday accepted the resignation of County Supervisor Willard F. Day effective Saturday.

Day said he has taken a "better position" near Cincinnati, Ohio, in connection with the development of a regional water supply to serve the industrial area adjacent to the city.

Although he had told the Board of Commissioners six weeks ago that he would resign the matter was held in secrecy until after election. Commissioners are not expected to fill the $10,000 a year post, but will leave the appointment up to the incoming Commissioners who take office January 1.

In resigning Day said that he believed "substantial progress has been made in improving the operation of the department and offices of the county that are under the jurisdiction of the Board of County Commissioners."

Appointed in August, 1945

Day, who is a former manager of Henrico County, Va., was appointed by the Democratic commissioners in August, 1945. Although Day said his resignation was not related to yesterday's election, observers noted that every Republican candidate for local office was elected.

His achievements in the county were described in Readers' Digest and other national publications. He has served in various capacities in the National Housing Agency, National Resources Planning Board and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

The improvement which he brought about in the county include the preparation and form of the annual budget and budgetary controls; centralized purchasing procedures; application of the merit system to the selection of county employes; a study of the extent and cost of surfacing unimproved and semi-improved rural roads and the development of a program of roads and road maintenance.

Developed Higher Standards

Also attributed to him are the procurement of additional road machinery and equipment; development and adoption of higher construction standards for streets built by developers in new subdivisions; creation of a county safety board, and consideration of measures designed to reduce highway accidents.

He also inaugurated the medium of monthly reports indicating the function and activities of several offices and departments and by meeting with several civic associations and groups kept county residents informed of the organizational structure of the county government as well as the services it performed and the improvements that were made.

Reich Adopts Free Press In U. S. Zone

Stuttgart, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP).—The German Council of States announced today adoption of a law guaranteeing freedom of the German press in the American occupation zone.

Publications were charged with the responsibility of reporting the news "truthfully and completely."

"The press is entitled to information from public officers, unless weighty reasons speak against this," declares the new code which, if approved by the Military Government, will go into effect January 1. It is expected to last only until March, 1947, however, when the newly elected German legislators are expected ot write their own press codes.

The press law's provisions represent a marked change from the rigid press censorship of the Hitlerian era, but still contains several checks on news writers which are not found in American law.

The German law provides that "persons who discuss intimate details of another's private or family life in the press without their permission are bound to state in the same issue why the publication has a justifiable interest in the matter."

Police are empowered to seize an issue without court order "if it tends to disturb the peace and a court order cannot be obtained in time" or "it tends to corrupt the morals in violation of the penal code." Any seizure must be confirmed by a court, however.

Jersey's 'Mystery Girl' Goes Free Tomorrow

Hackensack, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP).—Bergen County's mystery girl, "Susan Bower," was again found guilty today of being a disorderly person, but in place of her original six months sentence, she will be released next Friday.

Judge Irving S. Reeve sentenced the mysterious blonde to serve 40 days, less time already served and time off for good behavior.

She admits her identity is fictitious, but refuses to divulge any more information about herself.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Rise Of The Republicans

IT TAKES a long time under our system of government to change over from one party to the other. It can hardly be done in less than three years. During this period the Ins break up and lose their ability to govern before the Outs, who are going to replace them, can organize themselves, choose their leaders, and sort out their views. We are now in such a period. The decay of the Democratic Administration, which began at least eighteen months ago, is far advanced. But the Republican Party is far from being ready to take over.

LIPPMANN

The change over begins, of course, in Congress when the Administration can no longer command a working majority. President Truman since he took office, like Hoover after 1929-30, like Wilson after 1918-19, like Taft after 1909-10, has had no support and has faced a growing opposition from Congress. But this opposition in Congress is not necessarily, or even probably, as it would be in Britain, for example, the core of the next Administration. For the new national party control comes out of the States.

THAT IS where political power is generated, and that is where most Presidents, and in modern times our most successful Presidents, are tried out and trained. It is from the Governors, rather than from men who have worked their way up through Congress, that a good President is most likely to come. For legislative experience does not usually fit a man to be Chief Executive. The effective Presidents in this century, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Coolidge, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, had been Governors of States. Taft, Harding, Hoover, and Truman had not been.

If, as is most probable, there is to be a Republican Administration elected in 1948, the candidate will be selected by conflict and compromise among the Republican parties in the States. Therefore, the National Republican Party of 1948 is not yet visible: it will be formed in the contest, which has still to be fought out, among the local organizations and factions dominated now by Governor Dewey, by Senators like Taft, Bricker, and Vandenberg, by Governor Warren, Senator Morse, Mr. Stassen, and Colonel McCormick.

Yet the election on Tuesday was decisive enough to make Governor Dewey far and away the leading contender. His problem is to keep his lead by composing the differences with his Republican rivals in such a way as to fit himself for national leadership.

NO MAN CAN do this who does not rise above factionalism, who does not realize that this country cannot be governed by one wing of a party. Mr. Hoover on election night announced that the election "defines that the Republican Party is the party of the right." Mr. Hoover could not have offered his party worse advice. If the Republican Party is to govern the country it must of necessity represent a broad compromise of views: it must be a party of the center or it will disrupt the country and divide itself.

It must be what all American parties have to be if they are to administer successfully a country which is so big, so heterogeneous, and so varied in its interests—a working combination of many factions, groups, and regional interests.

NOTHING COULD BE more un-American politically than the notion that either of the great parties is the vehicle of a particular ideology. It is the very essence of our party system—and the most valuable thing about it—that in order to govern a party must compose and adjust within itself the sharp differences which divide men. It is not too much to say that the stability and survival of our institutions depend upon the ability of the party system to moderate and neutralize the fierce conflicts of factions.

When a party tends to become ideologically simple, it is a mere faction and can never command the support of the Nation. Thus the decay of the Democratic Party set in when it split into its southern and its northern urban factions, and was no longer a working combination. Then it was unable to govern. If the Republicans were to follow Mr. Hoover's advice, they would begin where the Democrats have ended.

THE DISCOVERY of the point at which the factions that make up a party can coalesce, and the views which divide it can be reconciled or transcended: that it is the inwardness of party leadership. It is now the business of the responsible Republicans to search for and find this point at which national leadership can begin.

It will not be easy. As they go about it they might say to themselves what Washington said when he had been elected: "My movements to the chair of government will be accompanied by feelings not unlike those of a culprit who is going to his place of execution."

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Time For Republican Self-Restraint

NEW YORK.—"Our only restraint is our own self-restraint." Those words were written by a great American, the late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone, who also happened to be a Republican. Justice Stone was addressing in one of his famous dissents the stubborn conservative majority on the Supreme Court.

Childs

That majority, in Stone's interpretation, thwarted the intentions of Congress in rejecting law after law as unconstitutional. They based their decisions not so much on the law as on their own economic predilections. They were out to block the New Deal.

Open warfare between the Court and the President followed. The divided powers of Government seemed to make stalemate inevitable. That has happened again and again under our constitutional system. This is written on election night. It is too early to say whether the Republican sweep will measure up to the sanguine claims made by the GOP campaign managers. But at this moment there seems little doubt that the "ins" are on the way out, carried on one of those almost irresistible tides that seem to govern American politics.

For the Republicans, as they begin to assume power, this should be a sobering moment. Stone's words about restraint should be written up in neon lights on the Capitol dome. Only by the exercise of the greatest self-restraint will our system of divided powers work during the next two crucial years.

THE New York Times news bulletin says that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's majority for reelection will be 650,000 or more. That means he is a formidable contender for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, even though he is a defeated candidate and the party has never renominated a man once defeated.

It means that the jealousies and rivalries within the GOP will be multiplied and intensified. The Republican Party is no harmonious army of the right marching on to ultimate victory. It is almost as torn by factionalism as the Democratic Party.

First, there are the rivalries for place and power. The years of waiting have been lean. The prize in 1948 is a rich one. While Senator Robert A. Taft is far ahead in organization strength and in delegates already nailed down, this does not mean that the other contenders will give way.

Rivalries are keen on a lower level. If, as now seems certain, the Republicans control the House, there will be a bitter contest for the offices that go with control. Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio and Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana are both zealous contenders for the office of majority leader.

Besides the personal rivalries there are profound differences of belief within the party. Liberal-progressives such as Senator Morse of Oregon, Senator Aiken and his newly elected colleague, Senator Ralph Flanders of Vermont, Senator Tobey of New Hampshire and others cannot be ignored by the ultraconservatives and reactionaries who will claim the victory as theirs.

THE REACTIONARIES are certain to be challenged within their own party, and vigorously. The liberal-progressives remember that the Republican Party has other roots than those that connect with big business. They remember Theodore Roosevelt and the men he attracted to his banner—such men as the late Gifford Pinchot, who helped to pioneer the whole conservation movement.

In the flush of victory these differences will be submerged. When Franklin Roosevelt came into office after 12 years of Republican rule, the Democratic Party gave a remarkable imitation of harmony. It lasted nearly four years.

The immediate danger is that the little men with little minds who have waited for this opportunity will take over. They have been reelected time after time in orthodox Republican districts and now the escalator of seniority has brought them to the top.

If these men throw all caution to the winds in the flush of victory, if their motive is revenge, if their only objective is to push the clock back, then we shall be in for serious trouble. Such arrogance and such heedlessness might even jeopardize the bright hopes of the party for 1948.

That same escalator carried Southern Democrats to the top during the Republican twenties. They blocked measure after measure that the New Deal Administration sponsored. They are one reason the Democratic Party is so badly split today.

One thing certainly is true. The opportunity for positive leadership was never greater. But if you judge from the kind of campaign they put on, it is hard to see how such leadership can come from the Republican Party.

The reaction to the election here in New York somehow typified the whole campaign. There were a few apathetic strollers in Times Square that even the breathless radio could not exaggerate into a crowd. In a mood of discontent and distrust, America went to the polls.

The Landslide

The Election And The World

IN A STATEMENT on Tuesday's election, former President Herbert Hoover has hailed the results as a swing by the United States to the right. That is also the view of many others.

NOVER

"This has been much more than just another congressional election," said Mr. Hoover. "The whole world, including the United States, has been for years driving to the left on the totalitarian road of 'planned economy,' socialism or communism. America is by this election the first country to repudiate this road. And it defines the Republican Party as the party of the right."

JUDGED by the results of the November 5 balloting alone it is difficult to quarrel with Mr. Hoover's interpretation.

Certainly the composition of the next House and Senate, whether we take party affiliations into account or disregard them, will be several shades more conservative than that of any Congress since 1928, in the heyday of the boom years, and probably much further to the right than are the great majority of Americans.

Indeed, the next American Congress will, by a wide margin, be the most conservative legislative body to be found anywhere in the democratic world.

Mr. Hoover suggests that this swing to the right by the United States may lead to a reversal of the strong leftward trend that has developed in so many countries abroad.

It is much too early to assume anything of the kind. It is also too early to assume, as others do, that in moving in a direction opposite to that of the prevailing trend the United States will find it impossible to cooperate with the other nations of the world.

A very great deal depends on how the Republican members of Congress make use of the great victory they have just won, both with respect to domestic affairs and with respect to foreign relations.

If the election results are regarded by the Republican Party leadership as a mandate to go "back to normalcy" at home and unrestrained nationalism abroad this country will certainly be in for a lot of trouble.

Such a program would mean, first of all, a continuous conflict between the legislative and the executive branches and consequent paralysis of Government. It would also mean creating a wide and dangerous gulf between the United States and the rest of the world.

On the other hand if those pleas for unity, harmony and cooperation which leading Republicans made in the very hour of victory are translated into a constructive program of action, the dangers of the situation we now face can be averted.

THE MID-TERM election of 1946 inevitably recalls the mid-term election of 1918, one of the most fateful in our history.

Then Woodrow Wilson, who had successfully led the country in war, found himself, a few days before the armistice, with a Republican House and a Republican Senate. The result was the repudiation of his program of peace and particularly his plan to make this Nation a member of the League of Nations.

This time, happily, the question of American participation in the new world organization which has succeeded the old League is no longer a matter of partisan politics. The Charter of the United Nations was approved overwhelmingly by Republicans as well as Democrats. And in the making of the peace as well as in the United Nations affairs representatives of both parties have been and are cooperating harmoniously.

AMERICAN foreign policy, it must be remembered, however, involves far more than adherence to the Charter or the working out of the specific terms of the peace treaties.

These are merely the skin and bones. The program of international cooperation which this country has been pursuing means a program of cooperation in economic and financial as well as in political matters.

We cannot afford to forget, in this connection, that the Smoot-Hawley tariff was as great a disaster as was America's refusal to join the League.

There are many Republicans, in both houses, who understand perfectly what policies America's international position calls for. The extension of the Hull reciprocal trade program, the British loan, the appropriation of funds for the Export-Import Bank and similar actions had Republican as well as Democratic support. But whether the viewpoint of these Republicans will prove to be the viewpoint of the party in Congress remains to be seen.

The victory won by the Republicans last Tuesday places an enormous responsibility upon it. In a very real sense they now have the destiny not only of the United States but also of the world in their keeping. If they use that victory wisely and with restraint, we may go forward toward a new period of prosperity and achieve an era of domestic and international peace. But let it be hoped that it will not have to be said of them what was said of Hannibal, that they knew how to win a victory, but not how to use it.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

What About My Job? Is Question of the Hour

"What will happen to my job now that the Republicans will control the Congress?

This is the question of the hour for Federal employes, from President Truman down to the lowest-paid messenger.

Kluttz

It is generally believed that the Republicans would attempt to carry out their campaign pledge for economy in Government—and economy means fewer Government employes.

But there will be fewer employes in any event. The Administration already has announced plans to get down to 1,500,000 workers in this country by June 30, and this, in itself, would mean the release of 650,000 Federal employes by that time, or about 80,000 for each of the next eight months.

Whether the Republicans, by control of the Nation's purse, can force the Administration's "rock-bottom" employment figure down any further by that time must be seriously doubted.

The fact shouldn't be overlooked that the Administration has an economy program of its own.

One fact is certain—that the pledge of some top Republicans to cut off two million Federal workers is merely campaign talk; it would be impossible to accomplish.

What about a new pay raise for Federal employes? This is doubtful—perhaps even more doubtful now—but the outlook for it would have been dark even if the Democrats had retained control of Congress.

As reported here several weeks ago, the Administration plans to ask the new Congress to raise salaries in the upper brackets only—to lift the ceiling on Classification Act salaries from $10,000 to $15,000, and it will have every argument in the bag when it does.

It would be somewhat out of character for the Republicans to vote pay raises in the higher brackets after their lambasting of the bureaucrats. But it's too early to tell. Some of the stoutest defenders of higher salaries in the top brackets when the issue was debated in the last Congress were Republicans who were reelected—Herter of Massachusetts, Case of New Jersey, and Fulton of Pennsylvania. And I'm sure their minds haven't been changed.

The immediate blow to Federal workers is the loss of such friends as Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House Civil Service Committee, and Senator James Mead of New York.

Also missing from the House committee will be Representative Helen D. Mankin (D., Ga.), who failed reelection, and Representative William J. Gallagher (D., Minn.) who died recently. These two members were stanch supporters of progressive employe legislation.

The way is reported to have been paved for Representative Edward H. Rees of Kansas to take over the chairmanship of the House committee under GOP rule. However, Representative Fred A. Hartley, Jr., of New Jersey, is a clear possibility for the post as he outranks Rees in seniority. Hartley is the ranking Republican on the Post Office Committee that will be merged with Civil Service.

In any event, Rees will be a powerful figure on employe legislation. It's entirely possible that Hartley will deal with Post Office employes and Rees will handle other groups of Federal workers. So, let's take a quick look at Rees' record:

He's the sponsor of a bill to exempt from Federal income taxes the first $1440 of Civil Service pensions.

He has demanded an inquiry be made of subversive elements in the Federal service.

He has opposed higher salaries in the upper brackets.

Almost single handed, he led the successful fight against the Randolph bill in the past session of Congress that would have given Federal employes an 18 per cent raise and would have lifted the $10,000 ceiling to $14,000. Later, he joined with Randolph on the 14 per cent bill that was approved.

In the Senate, too, will be a new Federal worker leader—most likely Senator Clyde Reed of Kansas, the ranking GOP member of the Post Office Committee. Last December, Reed was among those who spoke sharply against the Downey bill that would have raised the salaries of Federal workers by 20 per cent. At the same time, he criticized the law which gives most Federal workers 26 days off each year. Earlier, he spoke against a bill to raise the salaries of postoffice employes.

Reed is a former Federal worker, having served many years in the Post Office Department.

The second ranking Republican on both the Civil Service and Post Office Committees is Senator William Langer who won reelection. Langer is definitely on the liberal side on most employe issues, but he fought the bill to break the $10,000 ceiling.

Official Jap Group Asks Birth Control

Tokyo, Nov. 6.—Maternity centers and birth control clinics will be established throughout Japan if recommendations by a committee of the Welfare Ministry are adopted by the Japanese government, it was learned today.

Indicating that influential members of the government are finally agreed that Japan's population must be controlled in the future if the nation is to be restricted to the home islands, the population policy commission said that it would recommend that birth control information, long banned in Japan, be made available to the general public.

Third Defendant Is Put on Trial In Va. Rape Case

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Dan Townsend, jr., 24, railroad fireman and former United States Army soldier, entered a plea of innocent today when he went on trial in Albemarle County Circuit Court on a charge of rape against a 21-year-old Greene County girl on the night of July 29 near here.

Townsend is the third of six men charged with attacking the girl to face charges. Samuel Herbert Brown, 19, received a five-year sentence last month, while Charles R. Dove, jr., was sentenced to 10 years. Separate juries were asked for each of the six cases.

The plaintiff took the stand today for the third time to relate her version of the alleged offense.

Townsend testified he had been intimate with the girl, but that she had offered no resistance.

Earlier in the day the girl testified that after Brown had attacked her she was too weak to resist the other five men.

The case was adjourned late this afternoon until tomorrow.

U. S. Agents Probe Story Hitler Is Still Alive

Stuttgart, Germany, Nov. 6 (AP).—United States Army agents are investigating with frank skepticism the story of a recently captured SS lieutenant colonel that Adolf Hitler is still alive and can be heard addressing his followers over a secret radio transmitter.

The SS officer is the same one who announced on his arrest near here last week that he had seen Hitler's former deputy, Martin Bormann, in late May, 1945—after the date Bormann was reported killed in Berlin.

Army officials are inclined to regard the officer as a "crackpot."

The German says he is Hans Joachim von Burgsdorf. He is not listed in army records. Psychiatrists reported he was not insane—"at least no crazier than any SS fanatic."

that responsibility in a manner that will contribute to the advance of the welfare of the rank and file American people."

Former President Hoover, read international implications into the election, declaring in a statement that "this decision of the United States will have a profound effect on nations which have been following the road to the left." The victory "defines that the Republican Party is the party of the right," he said.

John Foster Dulles, foreign policy adviser to Governor Dewey in the 1944 presidential campaign and an alternate United States delegate to the United Nations, said he was "confident that a Republican Congress will not throw our foreign policy into confusion but rather will make it stronger and clearer."

PAC to Work Harder

The CIO Political Action Committee, which spearheaded the fight for Democratic congressional candidates in many districts, declared its activity would be intensified and expanded.

Jack Kroll, Pac director, said "there will be no halt in our work. There will be no retrenchment. We will go on fighting for Franklin D. Roosevelt's program."

James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, added that "labor's political action is here to stay. This means only that we have to work all the harder."

Henry A. Wallace, former Vice President and Secretary of Commerce, who campaigned widely for Democratic candidates, said in Washington, "The Democratic Party will either become more progressive or it will died," and added, "I do not expect it to die."

Pepper Recalls War I

Another Left-Wing Democratic leader, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, said, "The Republican Party captured our Government after World War I as they have captured it after World War II, and we got inflation, depression and isolation that led to world chaos and to war."

Some dissatisfaction in Democratic ranks was evident over the prominence of Left-Wing groups in the 1946 campaign.

Representative Frank W. Boykin (D., Ala.) wired President Truman "we might have had different results had we had such Democrats as you and Senators Walter George, Harry Byrd, Kenneth McKellar, Joe Bailey, Tom Connally, Elmer Thomas, Millard Tydings, John McCormick, Dick Russell, Tom Steward and Speaker Sam Rayburn and others of their type out in front for the Democrats instead of Henry Wallace and his group."

President A. F. Whitney of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen said in Miami, "one reason, in my opinion, that the election went Republican was because of the attitude of President Truman in his attempt to make slaves out of a fine group of railroad workers last May."

Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, New Dealer defeated after two Senate terms, had one of the briefest comments:

"The people evidently wanted a change and they got it."

apparent in recent months between the East and West," said one diplomat in the German capital who preferred to remain anonymous. "It will not makes the coming Peace Conference on Germany any easier."

Dispatches from Moscow, where Soviet commentators often have spoken sharply against Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan Republican who may now have a leading role in influencing American foreign policy, said the Russians were not greatly surprised by the election returns. The one or two recent comments printed in the Russian press before the election had indicated the possibilities of a Republican victory.

French See Defeat for Truman

In Paris, the Communist "Ce Soir" editorialized that the Republican swing meant a hardening of the United States position toward Russia.

It is no secret that the Republican party envisages a foreign policy aimed at domination of the world by the U. S. A.," the newspaper said.

The Paris press interpreted the election thus: (President) "Truman has lost his majority and will be beaten in 1948."

Rome newspapers also reported the election prominently but there was little editorial or official comment.

In London, official circles and Labor Party circles also were silent. A Conservative Party spokesman, though thinking it "improper" to comment, said "there is no international tieup between the parties of the right, such as the Socialist International which existed before the war and whose modified revival is now being planned."

Star Fears Britain to Suffer

The Star, a liberal publication and the first London newspaper to comment, said "from now onwards we shall see American big business energetically exploiting the Republican victory and in every way thwarting national and international efforts to get order into world affairs . . .

Declaring the Republican victory "cuts right across Britain's policy," the Star said "Britain may suffer the backwash of today's political topsy-turvydom in America but the British course is set. Today's results make the increase of British industrial output all the more urgent. The only answer to the triumph of reaction in America is for Britain to send on her own feet."

On the other hand the conservative Evening Standard said "the swing to the right" was "a resounding call for a businessmen's government."

FULBRIGHT

President when there is no vice president."

Fulbright declared he had made resignation proposal in an "off-the-record" talk with friends early this week. He said he contemplated introduction of a constitutional amendment which would permit Congress "to authorize a new election for President if the legislative and executive bodies are controlled by two parties."

"Only one party should control the Government. It alone, then, will have to assume responsibility for all the programs, good and bad," asserted the Senator.

"Too many times we have had a President from one party and a Congress controled by another party. In fact, we have had such a system occur about 27 times since the Nation was founded.

"It is the biggest defect in our constitutional system. And it has hurt the American people badly.

"You remember in the last two years of the Woodrow Wilson regime. We had a Democratic President, a Republican Congress.

"You remember the disastrous consequences that followed. There was inflation, then depression. And the peace was ruined."

Fulbright said "it is only natural" that the legislature, controlled by one party, should hamstring the objectives of the Executive who belongs to another party.

He declared an amendment that would alleviate the situation that gives two parties control of the Government is under study by several lawyer friends of his, adding such an amendment would "keep the whole Governmen tin the hands of the same party."

Such a system, he said, is similar to the setup now in effect in Canada.

"There the whole government is in the hands of the same party. . . . When the group in office is defeated the executive goes out with his party," he said.

Fulbright declined comment on the election. Before returning to Washington after visiting a relative he did say, however, that "the people have obviously made their choice and the President should abide by it."

Field Urges Resignation

Chicago, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The Chicago Sun, which supported President Roosevelt's Administration, tonight urged President Truman to name a Republican Secretary of State under guidance of GOP Senators and Congressmen and then resign the presidency in his favor for "the welfare of the Nation."

In a front page editorial, Marshall Field, Sun publisher and editor, said in an open letter to Mr. Truman that "the hour has come for you to create a notable precedent in American history."

"This opportunity comes to you as the result of the unmistakable verdict of the voters in Tuesday's elections," Field said. "These voters have registered their belief that domestic progress and international tranquility can be better won by the Republican Party.

"That we do not share this belief is beside the point—the people have spoken."

TAX

icy of cutting Government expenditures while maintaining tax levels high enough to balance the budget. Knutson had this to say:

"History repeats itself. After the first World War a Republican-controlled Congress balanced the budget, reduced the national debt 36.5 per cent in 10 years and at the same time made four reductions in taxes.

"Our immediate goal will be to cut expenditures, balance the budget, establish a surplus each year to apply on the national debt and grant as much relief to a tax-burdened Nation as sound fiscal policies under governmental economies will permit.

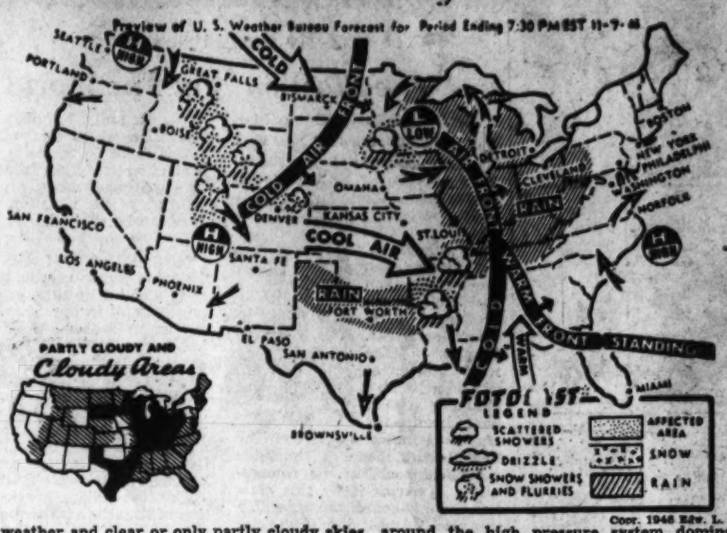
GOP Group to Meet

"A sane level of taxation has a direct relationship to increased Government revenue. This and many other traditionally American approaches to full employment, a high level of business activity and lower prices will again prevail."

Knutson said the unofficial House Republican Tax Study Committee, headed by Representative Reed of New York, will meet in Washington later this month to begin drawing the Republican tax legislation.

Congress, in the first tax-slicing bill in 16 years, cut the Federal burdens by six billion dollars for 1946, sweeping 12 million low-income persons off the tax rolls completely and killing the war-imposed 95 per cent excess profits tax on corporations.

National Weather Summary



Copr. 1946 Rdw. L. A. Wagner

Fair weather and clear or only partly cloudy skies are promised most Eastern States from Maine to Florida. The Gulf Coast States will enjoy similar conditions.

However, rain will be moving eastward along a line extending from northeastern Texas to the Great Lakes, in connection with an intensifying low pressure center and accompanying frontal system. (See FOTOCAST for affected area.)

Clearing skies will follow the recent storm conditions from the western Great Lakes region southward through Kansas into Oklahoma. High pressure will be influencing this sector Thursday as cold air circulates around the "high" in the Western States.

Snow flurries are again indicated in the north and central Rocky Mountain regions where cool air from western Canada is in evidence.

Rising temperatures will accompany the fair weather forecast for the East as warm air flows around the high pressure system dominating the eastern portion of the United States. This condition will contrast markedly with a cold air flow around a high cell in the western part of the Nation.

The Pacific Coast States and Southwest will have continued fair weather Thursday, matching that of the Atlantic Seaboard States.

The major weather making influences on the current map are low pressure developments, whereas recent days have been marked by high pressure cells in most parts of the country.

Highest temperatures in the Northeast will average around 60 degrees Thursday afternoon, except in northern Maine where the reading will be near 44 degrees. The Great Lakes sector will have 50 to 60 degrees temperatures; it will be near 56 at Kansas City and above 50 degrees at St. Louis. Readings in the mid-sixties are expected in Tennessee and will be nearer 70 degrees in Arkansas, eastern Texas and southern Nevada. The thermometer will register 40 to 55 degrees over the northern Plains.

Greek Ex-Premier Asks New Election To Solve Impasse

Athens, Greece, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Emmanuel Tsouderos, leader of the Republican Progressive Party and a former premier, called today in an open letter to King George II for dissolution of parliament and new elections as the only remedy for the Greek political crisis.

He charged that the present parliament did not represent the national will.

Constantine Kalkanis, new minister of public order in the reorganized Greek cabinet, promised a more lenient policy toward Leftists.

Kalkanis ordered the release of all exiled old men, women and children against whom no serious charges have been filed.

Trial of Durant May Be Held in U.S.

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 6 (U.P.) Col. Jack W. Durant, third suspect in the $1,500,000 theft of the Hesse family jewels, may be tried in the United States because of the difficulty of bringing witnesses to Germany, Army officials said today.

Durant, who is in custody here pending the filing of formal charges, probably will not go on trial for another month. His two alleged coconspirators, Maj. David F. Watson and Durant's wife, former Wac Capt. Kathleen Nash, already have been convicted and sentenced.

Argentine Newspapers Marfl Newsboys Holiday

Buenos Aires, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—No newspapers will be published in Argentina tomorrow, complying with a recent department of labor decree creating eight newspaper holidays a year. One of these is "newsboys' day," November 7.

The decree prohibited the sale of newspapers in streets or public places and their delivery to subscribers on such holidays, for the purpose of "giving news vendors a day of rest."

King George Hopeful Of Early Peace Pacts

London, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—King George, formally adjourning Parliament today, expressed hope that peace treaties soon would be signed and that establishment of an international bank would bring a better standard of life to peoples of the world.

The King's speech was read to the final joint session of Parliament's two Houses by Lord Chancellor Lord Jowitt. The King did not appear in person.

CHAIRMEN

Tobey of New Hampshire and Wiley of Wisconsin. They all entered the Senate in 1939, so they are equal in seniority and their claims to committee control hang on their seniority on particular committees.

The Finance chairmanship is apt to be claimed by Taft, who will be the ranking Republican on that group if Vandenberg heads Foreign Relations.

The Banking and Currency chairmanship probably would then go to Tobey, who has long shown interest in this legislation. He is believed to prefer the banking post to the chairmanship of the Armed Services Committee, although he is the ranking Republican there, too.

In that case, Gurney could claim the Armed Services chairmanship.

With White taking another chairmanship, Wiley becomes top Republican on the Judiciary Committee and probably will head that group.

Read to Head Rules? . . . . . .

The appointments would leave Reed a claim to head the new Rules Committee. However, he has been deeply concerned with rail rates and problems and would prefer to head Interstate Commerce. Since White—who seems slated for the Interstate Commerce post—might claim the Rules chairmanship insteap, if he wished, there is a chance they will switch, putting Reed in th erall committe and White over Rules.

Casualties included Representa-nings Randolph, and Cleveland M. tive M. M. Neely, the veteran Jen-Bailey.

"The vote for the United States Senate," said Hallanan, "is so very close that it will be necessary to await the official canvass to determine results. We believe that the official canvass will show the election of Tom Sweeney.

Wholesale Fraud Reported

"Reports have reached me of wholesale fraud in several counties in southern West Virginia where the Democratic machine is in supreme power.

"In Logan, armed deputies stood at the polling places to prevent voters from exercising their franchise. In other precincts of the same county, Republican ballots were destroyed. At another precinct, only one Republican vote was counted of many that were cast.

"These tactics were carried on in many sections of southern West Virginia on election day."

Reds Seize Part Of Carl Zeiss Plant

Berlin, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—German newspaper and radio reports from Jena in the Soviet occupation zone sadi today that part of the Carl Zeiss optical works had been shipped to Russia.

About 60 tons of material was shipped yesterday by rail, it was reported. Dismantling of the huge plants started November 1.

Zeiss executives had appealed to Marshal Josef Stalin through the Soviet commander in Germany, Marshal Vassili Sokolovsky, to leave the plant in Germany.

TRUMAN

however, left little doubt as to what his reaction would be. They said it was "fantastic" and "outrageous." They said that Mr. Truman was too courageous a man to think of quitting, and they pointed out that no President in history has abandoned his post.

President Truman looked somewhat worn when he got back to Washington yesterday, but managed a smile nevertheless.

He declined to comment on the Republican Party's spectacular victory at the polls, but told reporters that he would see them at a White House news conference in a day or two.

Hears Returns on Train

Mr. Truman, aboard his special train en route from Missouri, stayed up until after 2 a. m. listening to radio reports on the election.

By the time he went to bed, he must have had a reasonably clear picture of the outcome: A Republican sweep that broke 14 years of Democratic rule on Capitol Hill and extended even to his own Missouri.

There the voters, in spite of appeals by Speaker Sam Rayburn and others, retired Senator Frank Briggs, who succeeded Mr. Truman in the Senate, and rejected the President's hand-picked candidate for a House seat in the Kansas City district, Enos Axtell.

Mr. Truman, with the help of the Pendergast machine, got the Democratic nomination for Axtell in a primary election. The President had called for defeat of Representative Roger Slaughter, the conservative incumbent, saying that if Slaughter was right, he (the President) was wrong.

What Mr. Truman's course of action will be in the future was the subject of much speculation yesterday.

Cognizant of Implication

A close student of American history, Mr. Truman knows as well as anybody what Tuesday's GOP victory portended. Almost invariably, loss of the House in a mid-term election has cost the party in power the Presidency two years later.

Some of Mr. Truman's friends thought that he might take a quite independent course in the next two years, proceeding on the assumption that he is no longer under obligation to any of the elements that heretofore have made up the Democratic Party.

Organized labor, it seemed clear to the President's associates, did little for the Democratic Party on Tuesday.

They might have been straining to put a bright hue on the matter, but some of Mr. Truman's friends thought that, in time, he might welcome a situation in which he could dismiss all political considerations and just do that which he thought was right.

CONGRESS

tinued prosperity for America," sadi Hannegan.

"It is the duty of the two parties to combine their efforts toward one basic objective—the strength and well-being of America."

Said Martin: "We will take the Government out of the people's hair and put it back into their hands."

Sees Policy Indorsed

Said Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chief Republican adviser of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes:

"It means unmistakable indorsement of the united, bipartisan foreign policy through which we are striving for national security and for world peace with justice on the basis of sound American ideals."

Emergency Over, Taft Says

Said Taft, first in line for GOP Majority Leader and next Senate finance chairman:

"For the first time in 14 years the United States no longer faces a state of emergency."

Echoing the solemnity of Hannegan's statement, Republican National Chairman Carrol Reece pledged the Republican Party to do its part to speed prosperity and peace.

Reece said he hoped "Mr. Truman and his subordinates will be equally cooperative."

Observers looked for little change in bipartisan agreement on foreign policy. The Administration's domestic program, however, is in for a GOP going over down the line, to the tune of many a scandal-seeking fishing party.

Knutson Pledges Tax Cut

From Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), next Ways and Means chairman, came the first pledge of tax cut fulfillment. Knutson promised to cut three billion dollars or 20 per cent from individual income taxes, along with reductions in excises on whisky, cosmetics and other items.

London Girl, 8, Tells of Mother Torturing Her

London, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Red-haired 8-year-old, Jean Tichner took the witness stand today and, in a voice that was almost a whisper, told ho wher mother burned her feet with matches and then padlocked her in a woodshed without food.

Crowds of mothers, many with children, hissed and booed Jean's parents, George and Mary Tichner.

"I don't know why she did it," the child said.

"Do you still love your mother?" the defense attorney asked.

"Yes," murmured Jean.

The magistrate continued the case until Monday.

that the average American either has no knowledge, or has distorted information, about Russia . . . when we shed our blood on the battlefields they wondered at our courage and patriotism. But now they libel us . . . It is impossible not to be amazed at the indecency of foreign people who consider themselves the foundation of civilization . . . Truthful information about Russia is the exception and lies are the rule."

Zhdanov mentioned Winston Churchill briefly as an example of "anti-Soviet propaganda and threats of a new war." Stalin, however, has unmasked the "warmongering campaign and has shown that Russia cannot be frightened with the threat of a new war," Zhdanov said.

"Unemployment" Cited

"The Soviet people act as the initiator in the struggle for peace," he continued. "The forces working for peace grow daily and become more organized. The Soviet Union is not alone in this. The forces of democracy have increased and the forces of reaction have been weakened."

Zhdanov said the country had fought its costliest war, he said, and must now rebuild and raise "the level of well-being" of its people. Any capitalist state which suffered as Russia did would take dozens of years to come back, he said, and would be a second class power.

America and Britain were not invaded and did not face the same problems, he said, but they "have still a crisis to face" and unlike Russia the United States production level has decreased while unemployment has increased. Russia has a planned economy and will have no unemployment, he said, and in addition there would be "no anarchy of production such as capitalism has."

Further Study Is Ordered for Five Rejected Nations

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt tonight sharply criticized the Soviet delegation in the United Nations general assembly for "wasting time" and failing to "indicate a spirit of compromise."

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 6 (A.P.).—The United Nations political committee wrangled briefly today over the rejected applications of five nations for membership in the United Nations and then turned them over to a 10-can subcommittee for study.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the Assembly would meet in full session at Flushing Meadows Friday (11 a. m. and 4 p. m., E. S. T.) at which time the approved membership applications of Afghanistan, Iceland and Sweden are likely to be acted upon with some ceremony. These three countries are the survivors of nine nations which at one time during the summer sought admission.

Egypt has demanded that the applications of Outer Mongolia, Albania, Ireland, Trans-Jordan and Portugal be sent back to the Security Council, in which they were rejected last August, for reconsideration. Panama and the Philippines have made similar suggestions. Siam, the ninth applicant, withdrew before a vote was taken.

Cadogan Supports Egypt

Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, president of the Security Council, supported Egypt with the statement that he felt there was a possibility that some might get through this time.

Referring to Russia's veto of Ireland, Portugal and Trans-Jordan, Cadogan said the "applications of three states were rejected by a decisive vote of one member. The only reason he gave was that these governments did not have relations with the Soviet Union. We believe these three states are fully qualified for membership."

Cadogan did not express himself on Outer Mongolia and Albania, whose Soviet-supported applications failed to receive the necessary majority in the Council. Soviet Russia remained quiet during today's discussion.

Canada Backs Ireland

Belgium and the Netherlands supported Egypt. Canada's Foreign Minister, L. S. St. Laurent, came out strongly for Portugal and Ireland but expressed doubts about Trans-Jordan.

The committee refused to reconsider its action yesterday in approving an Argentine proposal on the admission of new members, which the Slav group attacked as revising the U. N. Charter by "concealed methods."

Argentina merely wanted the words that the "Assembly takes note of the applications" inserted in the committee's resolution. The Russians contended this was a way of giving the Assembly authority which was assigned by the Charter to the Security Council.

MINISTERS

bad impression on his delegation. The Italian one was especially distasteful because it contained what amounted to threats, he said.

South Tyrol Up Next

At the next meeting, the Big Four will take up the Italian-Austrian agreement on the future of Italy's South Tyrol, the question of a guarantee of human rights for Italians in territory Italy cedes to Yugoslavia and, if there is time, Trieste.

Simic was the first speaker at the Big Four oval table. He offered four concessions by his country on Trieste:

1. To increase the area of the proposed international zone by 44 square kilometers (17 square miles), or about one third.

2. To agree that the governor of Trieste shall be named by the U. N. Security Council, instead of by the Trieste popuar assembly.

3. To give up Yugoslav insistence that the governor shall be a Yugoslav.

4. To give up the demand that Yugoslavia shall be permitted to maintain a garrison in the zone.

But Simic gave reasons why Yugoslavia objected to the proposed frontier. The chief one was a claim that the Istrian Peninsula, which Yugoslavia claims, is "an indivisible whole." Another was that Yugoslavia should get the city of Gorizia. A third was that the proposed border would give strategic advantages to Italy.

Labor Leaders Ponder Views Of New Congress on Strikes

By the Associated Press

Some labor leaders expressed the view yesterday that sentiment for strike control legislation may be stronger in the next Congress.

They based this view on the general trend of the election results and the personalities of the candidates who won and those who were beaten, and not on the fact that the Republicans won control of the Senate and House.

Both AFL and CIO officials said they expect the GOP leadership will have the 1948 presidential year continuously in mind and will seek to refrain from antagonizing labor.

"They realize the votes of the working people and their friends are a considerable factor in any election," said one top AFL advisor. "I think they are too smart to forget that."

Carey Sees GOP' Careful'

James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, told a reporter he felt the Republican leadership would be "very careful to avoid making labor angry."

"After all," he commented, "the Republican Party is a lot different now than it was 10 years ago. It supports a great many things now that it once opposed."

But labor officials noted the defeat of some of their strongest defenders in Congress, including many backed by the CIO Political Action Committee.

No matter which party had won, new labor legislation was certain to come up for consideration in the new Congress.

What it does in the labor field probably depends more on the strike situation than on which party is in control. A serious strike wave this winter would inevitably bring powerful support for drastic labor laws.

Republicans Favored Restrictions

Rollcall votes of the last session show that, on numerous questions, Republicans were more ardent than Democrats in supporting proposals to restrict union activities.

Congress passed the Case bill, which would provide a 60-day cooling-off period before strikes and restrict unions in several ways. President Truman vetoed it on June 11. A majority of the House voted to override the veto, 255 to 135, but this was five votes short of the required two-thirds. There was no need for the Senate to express itself, and the Case bill was dead for the session.

CIO leaders are worried over the possibility that the elections may have provided those extra five votes.

In the June 11 rollcall, Republicans voted 159-15 to override the veto and Democrats voted 118-96 to sustain the President.

Actress to Give Chest Awards To 3 Captains

Actress Ingrid Bergman will present awards for outstanding service to three Community Chest volunteer workers at the sixth report meeting tomorrow in the United States Chamber of Commerce building.

Names of the workers, who are the first team captains to complete 100 per cent coverage of their respective areas, are being withheld until the meeting.

With almost half of the District area goal of 4,200,000 already reported in, the Montgomery County Chest organization yesterday revealed that more than 45 per cent or $57,419 of its $126,640 quota has been achieved.

This was announced at the first report session of the organization held in the Silver Spring Armory at noon, attended by more than 200.

Confidence Is Voiced

The workers heard Mrs. Harold H. Burton, wife of the associate justice of the Supreme Court, predict that "The full quota will be reached before November 19" when the campaign closes.

Mrs. Adolphus Staton, chairman of the rally, in a brief speech declared that "now that the elections are over, our campaign task should bgecome easier as the interest of the citizenry turns away from things political."

Others present at the meeting included Daniel W. Bell, chairman of the Federation campaign, and Mrs. Albert W. Walker, Montgomery County chairman.

The Montgomery total thus far is virtually identical with the District area returns of $1,928,940 or 45.93 per cent of the goal. Volunteer workers throughout the metropolitan area today renewed efforts to achieve 60 per cent of the quota by tomorrow.

To Visit Mrs. Truman

Before appearing at the report meeting, Miss Bergman will visit Mrs. Harry Truman at the White House where she will present the First Lady wit ha Red Feather pin attached to a corsage of flowers.

Mrs. Angus Dun, chairman of the residential unit of the campaign, will meet Miss Bergman, accompanied by Playwrite Maxwell Anderson and Manager Joseph Steel, at the White House at about noon.

After the brief ceremony, Miss Bergman will drive to the Chamber of Commerce building where she will be introduced by Mrs. Dun, wife of the Episcopal bishop of Washington.

In Spotlight Position

In the spotlight at the meeting will be the residential unit with John Lord O'Brian, active in important Federal agencies in both world wars, as principal speaker.

O'Brian was chief of the War Emergency Division of the Justice Department during the Wilson administration and, in 1941, returned to Washington as general counsel of the Office of Production Management later named the War Production Board. He is a former head of the Buffalo, N. Y., Community Chest.

Others at the head table tomorrow will include: Mrs. Burton Bell, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, volunteer worker; Dr. Ernest Griffith, president of the board of the Washington Council of Social Agencies; Mrs. Henry Gichner, a vice chairman of the residential unit; Herbert L. Willett, jr., executive director of the Chest Federation, and the three team captains slated to be honored.

Election Notes

Dewey in '48 Club Starts In Texas

Marshall, Tex., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—A "Dewey-for-president-in-1948" club, believed to be the first in the nation, started functioning in staunchly Democratic Texas today.

The club was formed by the Harrison County Republican executive committee here in the home town of Democratic National Committeeman Myron Blalock. Spokesmen said the club had about 50 members now and predicted it would grow considerably by 1948.

Mead "Job" Just Rumor

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—United States Senator James M. Mead, defeated Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, labeled as "just a rumor" today the possibility he would be offered the post of Postmaster General.

Yesterday was Mead's first defeat at the polls. Previously, he had piled up 17 straight victories since he first ran for a public office in 1913.

VFW Head Elected

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 6 (A.P.).—James E. Van Zandt, three times a national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will return next January to the congressional seat he vacated to participate in the second World War.

Van Zandt defeated his Democratic opponent, John A. Shartle of Altoona, in the Twenty-second District.

Two Lodges Elected

Boston, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—Two good-looking socially prominent Lodge brothers won seats in the Eighteith Congress in the Republican landslide.

Grandsons of Henry Cabot Lodge, who led the fight in the U. S. Senate against American entry into the League of Nations, both are World War II veterans.

Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., 44, who resigned from the Senate in 1944 to go overseas with the Army, was returned by beating the veteran Senator David I. Walsh (D.) in Massachusetts.

John Davis Lodge, a former actor, won the U. S. Representative seat being vacated by Mrs. Clare Boothe in Connecticut.

Slogan Author Identified

Boston, Nov. 6 (A.P.).—The man who "cooked up" the widely used Massachusetts election slogan—"had enough?—vote Republican"—is a Boston advertising executive who kept his identity secret until after balloting began.

Karl Frost, president of the Karl M. Frost Co. of Boston, said that he and his associates "cooked up" the slogan at the request of the Massachusetts Republican Committee. Frost said the paint was hardly dry on Massachusetts' signs when the National Republican Committee requested authority to use the slogan.

Truman's Home Precinct Swings

Independence, Mo., Nov. 6 (A.P.).—President Truman's home precinct here cast five times more Republican votes in the general election yesterday than it normally does.

The precinct's average Republican vote is 20. Yesterday it produced 112 Republican votes in one Jackson County race, and 103 for James P. Kem, Republican nominee for U. S. Senator, against 144 for Democratic Senator Frank P. Briggs.

Business Maps Capital Outlay Of 3.4 Billion

Continuing a trend to increase new plant and equipment expenditures, American business, exclusive of agriculture, plans to spend about $3,400,000,000 during the last three months of 1946, the Securities and Exchange Commission said yesterday.

In its quarterly survey, made jointly with the Department of Commerce, the SEC compared the year's last quarter anticipated expenditures with $3,300,000,000 planned for the third quarter, and actual expenditures of $2,800,000,000 in the second quarter of 1946.

The estimated outlay for this year's last quarter is 45 per cent greater than the corresponding period in 1945, the SEC said.

If present estimates materialize the year's entire total will be more than 40 per cent greater than the peak year of 1941, the commission forecast. It added, however, that substantial increases in prices have been made since 1941 and should be considered in comparisons.

Of the last quarter total, approximately $3,100,000,000 will be spent by corporations, and the remainder will be spent by unincorporated business.

The SEC said American business will spend another $250 million on old or used plant and equipment during the last quarter.

"It is interesting to note," the commission said, "that generally the large manufacturing companies, and railroads, utilities and commercial and miscellaneous companies all anticipate fairly sizable increases in capital expenditures over the previous quarter, while mining and small manufacturing companies expect a decline."

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Marvil Firm Is Sold

Atlas Plywood Corp. today announced purchase of Marvil Package Co. from W. Enos Valliant and associated Maryland and New York interests.

The 41-year-old Marvil company has five plants in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia and is one of the leading makers of fruit, vegetable and berry containers on the seaboard. Included in the transaction were some 15,000 acres of timberlands in North Carolina.

Funds for the purchase were provided from proceeds of a $2,500,000 10-year bank loan.

Equitable Assets at New High

At the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the shareholders, Equitable Cooperative Building Association yesterday reelected all officers and directors. Secretary Edward L. McAleer disclosed that resources had grown during the past year to $10,741,000 a new all-time high.

Walter S. Pratt, jr., with 42 years of service with the association, was again named president; Harry G. Meem, vice president; Mr. McAleer, secretary; J. Harold McDowell, assistant secretary, and Milton R. Johnson, assistant secretary.

Newly elected to the board of directors was Fontaine C. Bradley, local attorney.

Directors reelected include Ralph P. Barnard, Charles H. Doing, Arthur B. Heaton, Alfred H. Lawson, Robert L. Lewis, Frank J. Stryker, Wilson L. Townsend and Dr. William Charles White.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Capitol Film Proves Again That Scenarists Can't Equal Virtuosos

IN THE STUDIO'S MOST COSTLY production to date, and its first in Technicolor, Republic Pictures lays valid claim to a place among the Hollywood "majors."

"I've Always Loved You," opening this morning at Loew's Capitol Theater, is visually magnificent and musically superb. Such weaknesses as present themselves in the dramatic movements of the story are largely atoned for by the superior abilities of the principals in the carefully chosen cast and the discriminating direction of the veteran Frank Borzage.

Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya

The screen play derived by Borden Chase from a magazine story, "Concerto," is thoughtfully prepared and engaging in its presentation of both a musical motif and a definite dramatic theme, but the latter is not quite so successfully consummated.

In its musical aspects, "I've Always Loved You" bears a close relationship to Columbia's earlier "A Song to Remember" and exerts perhaps an even more catholic appeal in its utilization of compositions by Chopin, Beethoven, Bach, Wagner and Mendelssohn, with Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto a potent instrument of dramatic climax.

The premise of the drama so closely interwoven with the picture's superlative instrumentalism is that supreme musicianship is strictly a man's profession in which woman can aspire to nothing more than an unimportant and ephemeral place.

Carnegie Hall Climax

This is the theory embraced by Leopold Goronoff, the great pianist-conductor and expounded to Myra Hassman, daughter of an old associate in the foremost musical circles of the continent. Only the attractiveness of the girl and the vague emotions she arouses in the master induce him to tutor her to the point of concert eminence and a brilliant debut in Carnegie Hall.

It is this debut that supplies the closing and most arresting portion of the film with its greatest dramatic impact.

Sensing that her initial solo performance is of a brilliance that threatens to subordinate even his own renown, Goronoff drowns out his protege with the orchestra and in a towering rage snaps off a rather more than budding romance.

Disillusioned, Myra returns to her farm home, marries George Sampter, the handsome bucolic who has always worshipped her, and nurtures a mounting rebellion against the fallacy of man's dominance in music and the collapse of what she conceives to be her "great love."

The matter is resolved in another concert appearance in Carnegie Hall in which Goronoff is the one who is humbled.

Such is the gist of the narrative that laces together musical sequences in which lovers of the classics will find much to arouse their admiration and enthusiasm. This central theme, however, has been embellished with many embroideries other then those of intricate musical design.

Plush and Pork Chops

Myra's daughter, Porgy, and Goronoff's mother implement much of the drama with the divergent viewpoints of youth and old age; sharp contrasts are afforded by the simple life of the Hassman farm and the opulence of artistic success in world capitals; there is variety and charm in much of the action and instability only in its romantic passages—which is equivalent to saying that the cinema has yet to match the majesty and power of the greatest music with a fictional romance to do it justice.

In "I've Always Loved You," the composition ostensibly executed by the characters actually were rendered for the sound track by Artur Rubinstein, famed concert artist.

The characters in the play, notwithstanding, are in the main splendidly portrayed.

Particularly notable is the performance of Catherine McLeod in the role of Myra, her first important assignment. Miss McLeod simulates concert artistry with remarkable skill and achieves something of a personal triumph in her sensitive and delicately shaded interpretation of a complex role.

Philip Dorn, as Goronoff, whose impetuous moods dominate the film from beginning to end, lends the part authority, temperament, arrogance and a touch of humility—diversity enough, one would guess, to satisfy any romantic taste.

The gentle counsel of Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya, as the maestro's solicitous and far wiser mother, affords the dramatic action the much needed ballast of mature wisdom and deep understanding, expressed in terms of a great and kindly heart.

Bumpkin Miscast

William Carter, hopelessly miscast as George Sampter, a pivotal figure in the most important intervals of the drama's development, enjoys the unhappy distinction of sounding the only violently discordant note. It is easy, nevertheless, to perceive high promise for this personable young man in less exacting parts more in consonance with his age and quietly ingratiating personality.

Felix Bressart, Fritz Feld, Vanessa Brown, as the grown-up Porgy; Elizabeth Patterson and Cora Witherspoon are to be found among those contributing most valuable support, with the Walter Scharf Orchestra furnishing eloquent symphonic background for many of the scenes.

In "I've Always Loved You" Republic has not created a masterpiece, but it has missed by a slighter margin than most.

The Capital's new stage bill will embrace Harry Babbett, former singing star with Kay Kyser; the Barretts, dancers; those acrobatic marvels, The Maxellos, and Johnny Burke, that hilarious victim of the Draft of 1917, with the usual house features completing an elaborate entertainment.

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

HMM! HE IS HANDSOME AND NOT DEAD!
I GET TRAVIS AND TAKE HIM HOME... HIS LEG IS HURT!
THAT IS GOOD! EVEN IF I FRIGHTEN THIS ONE, HE CAN'T RUN AWAY LIKE WOUNDED TRAPPER DID LAST YEAR!

SUPERMAN

NEXT MORNING, THE PRANKSTER AGAIN FINDS HIS OFFICE JAMMED WITH REPORTERS.
ANOTHER OF YOUR PREDICTIONS REGARDING SUPERMAN MATERIALIZED! HOW DO YOU ACCOUNT FOR IT?
ONLY ONE ANSWER. I MUST BE CLAIRVOYANT!
HOW'S ABOUT ANOTHER PREDICTION?
UNFORTUNATELY, I CAN'T SUMMON UP THE VISIONS AT WILL. THEY SEEM TO COME ONLY WHEN I'M DEALT A BLOW ON THE HEAD.
OH!
ANOTHER FANTASTIC PROPHECY—COMING UP!

BARNABY

The original investment varies. But a thin dime, the tenth part of a dollar, usually suffices. As for your father . . . Isn't it cheaper for him to take a chance on a new car . . . Rather than buy one F. O. B. . . . ?
Oh. Certain people frown on the purchase of a raffle ticket. They tote up the odds. And get discouraged. But this is folly. When an opportunity to get something for nothing comes along, ignore the percentages, I say.
Any questions?
Yes, Mr. O'Malley. Where can Pop buy a raffle ticket?

New York, Nov. 6—Margaret Truman, who has been in Missouri all these months—spending most of her time practicing with her singing teacher—finally agreed to return to Washington only when her mother threatened to cut off her allowance . . . Ambassador - General Walter Bedell Smith now is on his way back to his post in Moscow . . .

Margaret Truman

At the Herald Tribune Forum last week, Attorney General Clark announced that a Federal grand jury would investigate the Georgia lynchings. They'll investigate, but will return no indictments—for the investigators say that lynching is a State offense, and there's no Federal jurisdiction.

Not even the manager of the Waldorf Hotel is permitted on the 6th floor, where the Soviet delegation has its quarters, unless he has an official pass . . . Charles Jackson, author of "The Lost Weekend" and the new "Fall of Valor," has completed the first part of his next novel. It will be called "A Murder Story" . . . Ambassador Bay will return to his post in Oslo this month . . . When Bay first presented his ambassadorial credentials to the King, he had to walk up the long steps of the palace, lined with saluting members of the King's Guard. The American Ambassador turned to stare at the guards, for once, many years ago, his Norwegian-born father was a member of the King's Guard.

From Emperor Hirohito's Imperial vaults the Reparations Commission has removed a horde of diamonds weighing hundreds of thousands of carats. These will be shared, in kind, by the nations entitled to reparations, in percentages agreed upon. The largest share will go to America; the second largest to China; third to the Dutch and fourth to the Russians—who insist that the factories they looted in Manchuria shall not be charged against their reparations.

Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut will sail for Europe on a Government mission this month. . . . Jimmy Savo, the pantomimist whose leg recently was amputated, now has a wooden leg. He will leave for some out-of-town engagements to test the new routines he has created, preparatory to opening at Cafe Society Uptown in New York. . . . John Rogge, the former special assistant to the Attorney General, who was fired by Tom Clark for having revealed the contents of his report on the Nazi links in this country, will tell his full story in a book. This week Rogge will sign a contract with a New York publisher.

Correspondents in Moscow cannot find Ivan Maisky, the former Ambassador to Britain and one of the few surviving founders of the Soviet Union. The newspapermen have seen his wife, but report no sign of Mr. Maisky. . . . The new baby at the Edgar Bergen home has dispossessed Charlie McCarthy from the room Bergen built for the dummy which made him famous. The room was complete with bed and a closet full of clothing for Charlie. The room now has been converted into a nursery. . . . At Annie Get Your Gun," Jimmy Walker found himself standing between his doctor and Justice William O. Douglas. "Now I'm prepared for any eventuality," said Walker, "from a summons to pneumonia."

If you're a lover of opera, there is only one place in Washington where you can hear your favorites performed all through the year . . . The Opera House over WINX and WINX-FM. And when, in the ease and comfort of your own living room, you listen to The Opera House, you enjoy the finest in music, recorded and sung by world famous opera stars.

Tonight from 8:05 to 10:00 p.m. The Opera House and Evening Symphony are combined to bring you a complete performance of the Italian opera, "Andrea Chenier" by Umberto Giordano. It tells the story of the tragic love of a poor poet and a rich young girl during the French Revolution. Using the intrigues of the Revolution as a background, the opera rises to dramatic heights which lead inevitably to an ending of great tragedy.

The cast includes some of Italy's finest operatic stars. Luigi Marini is starred in the title role . . . Lina Bruna Rasa appears as Madeleine . . . and Salvatore Baccaloni sings the role of Roucher. You will want to hear these great opera stars . . . so listen tonight 8:05 to 10:00 p.m.

The regular Opera House program is heard every night except Sunday from 8:30 to 9:30 P. M.

Plebiscite

There is no use blinking the fact that Tuesday's District plebiscite was a disappointment. As a demonstration of this community's determination to exercise the rights of suffrage, it was anything but impressive. Some 600,000 men and women were estimated to be eligible to cast ballots; only about 170,000 did so—a figure far short of the quarter million hoped for. The volume of votes against suffrage, especially against the inauguration of local self-government, was altogether dismaying. As it turned out, no more than about one out of every five District residents eligible to do so actually took the trouble to register a demand for the most elementary of American rights—home rule.

It is not easy to explain the failure. Perhaps inadequate preparation and an insufficient number of polling places, together with inexperienced poll officials, contributed in some measure to the meagerness of the turnout. It can scarcely be denied, however, that the main cause was general apathy. Disfranchisement is a poisonous thing; the people of Washington, so long inured to it, appear to have been sapped even of the initiative and the will to remedy their own condition. Like victims of narcotic addiction, they seem incapable of acting to strike off the shackles of their enslavement.

To many, of course, the plebiscite seemed no more than a meaningless ritual. Doubtless this was especially true of persons living in the District who claim legal domicile elsewhere and who were able to vote on Tuesday in bona fide elections. We very much fear, however, that the failure of the plebiscite will not be regarded as meaningless on Capitol Hill, where a resounding shout from Washingtonians might have been heard and heeded. It will be taken by those who wish to keep this community in its present thralldom as an indication that they can continue to do so with impunity. The liberation of Washington will not be hastened by Tuesday's puny and pathetic demonstration; it may be grievously retarded. For this there is now no remedy save redoubled efforts on the part of local leaders to show that we have a moral right to full citizenship in the American society.

Missing Faces

Comparatively few Democratic incumbents defeated for reelection can rightly be called national figures. Most conspicuous among the casualties in the Senate, barring Senator Wheeler, who was defeated in the primaries, are Senators Walsh and Guffey, neither of whom, we venture to say, can be considered a loss to the country at large. On the House side Andrew J. May, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee and member of Congress since 1930, will likewise be missing—a defection that all friends of good government, regardless of party affiliations, will welcome.

Inevitably the landslide carried with it some good men who on the basis of their records deserved a better fate. Thus the District has cause to regret the retirement to private life of Representative Randolph of West Virginia, who is serving his seventh consecutive term in the House. Representative Emmet O'Neal of Kentucky is another seasoned and capable legislator with six terms to his credit who has been swept from the political scene by a political ground swell that was no respecter of persons. By and large, however, the Democrats who for good or ill have made history during recent years as chairmen of important committees or as party leaders are still in office. Chairman Doughton of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee is still with us. So is Senator George, chairman of the Finance Committee, who was not up for relection. Senator McKellar, who heads the Appropriations Committee and is presiding officer of the Senate also has been returned to office. In fact, going through the list of members of Congress, it becomes apparent that most of the legislators who head important committees will occupy seats in the next Congress.

But with what a difference! Not only will Republicans succeed Democrats as committee chairmen, but in accordance with the provisions of the Reorganization Act they will be required drastically to reduce the number of standing committees and provide for much closer working relationships between House and Senate. The public does not yet realize that organizational changes are pending that in the long run may have a much greater effect on the course of legislation than shifts in the partisan composition of House and Senate. The task of reorganization will be made much easier because of a political shift that would, in any case, have forced reluctant Democrats to abdicate leadership and surrender committee chairmanships to party rivals.

President And His Dilemma

The Republican sweep at the polls is so stunning that the President must take cognizance of it in action. It has been suggested that he ought to resign. The idea is not without some surface plausibility. With the GOP in the congressional saddle, holding the votes, the chairmanships and the purse-strings, the President can function only by grace of his opposition majority. The temptation to call the tune is almost irresitible to the victorious Republicans. Why shouldn't it be. For fourteen years they have been in the wilderness, and they are naturally eager to govern. In this case they have an overwhelming mandate from the American people. The balloting on Tuesday was in everything but form a national election and it resulted in a resounding repudiation of Mr. Truman's Administration.

In whose favor, however, would President Truman resign? To step down for Secretary Byrnes, next-in-line to the Presidency, would be to ease himself out of a personal difficulty, but not to solve the present dilemma. For the dilemma is the new division in our Government. The suggestion is that he should name one or another of the Republicans Secretary of State and then, in the absence of a Vice President, give him the reins of his august office. Let us imagine what would then happen. Immediately the Republican Party would be thrown in turmoil over the Democratic choice of a Republican President. It would be scarcely less embarrassing to ask the Republican National Committee to name a President. In either case, moreover, the move would be an affront to the spirit of the Constitution. We live under a Constitution that leaves the Presidency to the choice of the people. The answer to the argument that Mr. Truman was never chosen by the people is that a vote for the Vice President must be considered a vote for the President. This is the responsible exercise of the suffrage. It was certainly rubbed in in 1944 by Republican campaigners.

Not for a moment, we believe, will the President listen to the call for his resignation except as a last resort. It would be a confession of pusillanimity of which Harry Truman has never been accused. A quitter he has never been in his personal or political relations. Resignation might erode the bulwark of the Republic at a time when constitutional government is on trial. To be sure, a Constitution is not fixed and immutable and the need for amendments to it (as we have constantly suggested since the death of President Roosevelt created a vacancy in the Vice Presidency) is emphasized by the new impasse. What at the minimum is required whenever there is no Vice President is that the mid-term election shall be transformed into a general election. Another change is necessary to see that no mid-term election shall have the effect of producing divided government. But the demonstration of the split down the middle of our Government does not of necessity provide the grounds for taking a liberty with the usages of our Constitution.

However, the comprehensive nature of the people's repudiation of his Administration requires that the President shall recognize it. The statesmanlike thing to do is for the President to name a new Cabinet of Republicans for all the portfolios except that of the State Department. The reason for the reservation is obvious. As long as the Secretary of State is heir-apparent to the Presidency, he should be a Democrat till the people vote the Democrats out of Executive control. The retention of Secretary Byrnes is facilitated by the fact that at least on the general political lines of our foreign relations a biparty unity prevails. But nothing less than the naming of Republicans to the other Cabinet offices will suffice to grapple with the new situation created by the Republican landslide. If, in addition, Mr. Truman makes a statement that he will not run in 1948, we would have established on the Democratic side, it seems to us, the conditions of a modus vivendi between Democrats and Republicans.

But it takes two to make a bargain. Statesmanship is equally required on the side of the Republicans in order to avoid a paralysis of governmental operations. The people on Tuesday issued a mandate of government, not of deadlock. Let the Republicans remember this. The situation calls from them as from the Democrats a contribution of compromise in seeing to it that our Government remains strong and viable. Representative Martin, who will be the new Speaker, has told the Nation that the Republicans will act as Americans. Here is the initial opportunity of putting words into deeds by demonstration of self-restraint through cooperation with the President. The President must be given his due of leadership as well as the chance of simply keeping alive for the rest of his Presidency. In other words, joint responsibility must take the place of a mutual evasion of responsibility. This is what the Nation and much of a world that is almost in tributary relation to this Nation demand in the crucial years ahead till 1948. No two years in history are likely to be more important. The war is not yet wound up; reconversion still is incomplete; emergency legislation remains to be fulfilled; and the battle of the peace treaties is just beginning. What Bagehot calls the "efficient secret" of government is men working together rather than perfect institutions or constitutions. Without a wholehearted arrangement on government between Democrats and Republicans for the next two years there may be no option but for the President to resign.

Governor Dewey

The great victory won by Governor Dewey of New York in Tuesday's election has made him a formidable contender for the Republican nomination for the Presidency in 1948. It is true, of course, that the Republican Party has thus far shown a strong disposition to drop a loser in a presidential race like a hot potato. Herbert Hoover was not given the nomination in 1936, after his failure four years earlier; Alfred Landon was not even considered for the presidential post in 1940; and Wendell Willkie lost out in his bid for a second nomination some time before the national convention.

These and similar precedents, however, need prove no insuperable barrier to Dewey's renomination. New York, with the largest electoral college vote of any State, always looms large in convention eyes. Dewey has many claims in addition to his locale. First, it will now be recalled that in 1944 the New York Governor polled a larger vote than had ever been polled by any Republican candidate for the Presidency—and this at a time when many people, including a large number who opposed a fourth term, were fearful of a change of administrations while the country was engaged in global war. Secondly, the considerations that led to Governor Dewey's nomination in 1944 have been reinforced by the remarkable vote he polled as candidate for reelection as Governor. And, thirdly, he has a record, instead of having to build one.

Such contenders for the Republican nomination as Senator Taft and Senator-elect Bricker will have to go on record, through the votes they cast on measures that will come up in the Senate, on many issues. This may not help their candidacy. Former Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota operates under the disadvantage of having no public office he can use as a platform. Governor Dewey will not suffer from any of these handicaps. During his years in his present office he has given New York a very good administration, a fact which the voters recognized when they went to the polls on Tuesday and gave him a thumping majority over Senator Mead. During the next two years, barring grievous mistakes on his part—mistakes which he is not likely to make—he can ride on his record.

Capitalists' Strike

Two and one-half weeks after a strike of 200 of 1400 Transcontinental & Western Air pilots forced 15,000 other TWA employes out of work, the dispute seems about to be resolved through arbitration. That should have been the course in the first place. Since the AFL Airline Pilots Association already had won substantial increases out of the recommendations of the President's emergency panel, which the company put into effect August 8, it is a fair conclusion that one purpose of the strike was to demonstrate the crippling economic power of the union and its strong-man president, David L. Behncke. That such was the case has now been implied by Mr. Behncke himself. He has admitted that the strike involved not so much wages as new methods of compensation and of bypassing the Airlines Negotiating Committee, which represents the airlines as a whole.

The flimsy ground on which the walkout was called was not appreciated by the bulk of TWA workers who were displaced by the shutdown of all the airline's activities. The testimony is provided by letters on this page and the sight of furloughed clerks picketing the picketers. Knowledge that while these clerks were digging into their savings, pilots and copilots were enjoying cushy union benefits of from $250 to $500 a month was not calculated to sweeten the feelings of nonstrikers.

The cost of Mr. Behncke's megalomania and the thoroughly needless stoppage forced by the union cannot yet be measured, but it is sizable. There is, of course, the blow to the incomes of coworkers not involved in the dispute and the accompanying loss of revenue to TWA through grounding of its planes. If the arbitrators, by some sleight of hand, increase the salary award of the President's emergency panel, the other airlines doubtless will have to meet the TWA settlement. These extra costs will come at a critical time in the development of a still infant industry, when airlines in general have much of their capital tied up in new equipment and plans for expansion.

The hope of overcoming recent operating deficits lies in the quick augmentation of airline facilities. Here, too, is the best possibility for reducing the cost of air transportation and realizing the air age so widely prophesied as a result of wartime technical advances. Yet because of the strike, TWA already has had to cancel orders for 30 new planes. If this is a precedent for similar recessions on the part of other airlines, the damage will be immense. The pilots will have placed a serious obstacle in the way of the future expansion on which they will depend for their very bread and butter. Last but not least in the cost of this strike is the loss of airline prestige with the traveling public which is a direct result of this sorry demonstration of irresponsibility.

COLOR OF WIND

You who know the color of wind know eyes too bright with seeing, but Oh, the liquid light of it—the uncoiled movement of it, slim as a passing snake . . .
On days like this
I have seen the pond shake out its shallows like a girl tossing her hair—seen clearness that never was:
for a moment, the lean,
the line of tule, winged with dragonfly—
glide of water skaters, and on rock-gray depths, the upside down slide of moonstone shadows .
glimmering pooled sun, and suddenly,
spun gleam,
like eyelids closing,
too bright with the dream!

"Spoilt Soldiers"

The letter of November 3, on who's to blame for poor soldier morale in the Philippines, by Frederick Bernays Wiener, is a masterly example of non sequitur technique and of unproven statements used to arrive at "logical" conclusions.

What has the use of a military title after the war got to do with morale in the Philippines? On what ground does the Doolittle Board's report contribute to "the disintegration of military authority?" And why is the publication of gripes bad for morale?

In the opinion of many thoughtful persons, including obviously the members of the Doolittle Board, the recommendations were a step in the right direction.

Why, one is tempted to ask Mr. Wiener, has the Army some ten million "ambassadors of ill will?" That ill will cannot be allayed by name calling, by sneers about low-point buck privates and sour grape artists, by suppressing gripes. It can, perhaps, be allayed by seeking causes, by understanding the fundamental American dislike of class distinctions and military life, and by devising ways of maintaining an efficient and disciplined Army that does not do violence to this American attitude.

Mr. Wiener has indicated his slant and prejudice. If this is an example of former military brass, it is a far greater cause of lack of morale than any of the items he has listed. S. B. HANAU.

Washington.

In your October 31 editorial "Spoilt Soldiers," you say ". . . . others retain habits which home training failed to break and which six months of Army training can hardly be expected to overcome." This, together with the allusion to the fact that the men in question are of recent enlistment or induction, would indicate that you feel that a sufficient dose of "Army discipline" would end their bad manners.

I think the viewpoint absurd. Since the dawn of history, how many well-behaved armies have there been? The evidence seems to me to be very strong that this bad conduct is because of the Army and not in spite of it.

"Case Against Bilbo"

Your editorial of November 5, "Case Against Bilbo," is praiseworthy. Too many people are prone to be fatalists and believe that Bilbo is as inevitable as death and taxes. Or else they say that we should suffer in silence, since Bilbo "thrives on publicity."

The Post has adequately answered these two arguments. Perhaps, however, a few explanatory words are needed about the petition being circulated by the Washington Committee of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare—which requests that the Senate not reappoint Bilbo to the committee on the District of Columbia.

Some people have accused us of being defeatists by urging only the unseating of Bilbo as "Mayor of Washington" in our petition. Why not, they ask, demand that he be completely unseated from the United States Senate?

The answer is that we support, without qualification, any legal move to remove Bilbo from the Senate. There are many petitions being circulated, in Mississippi and elsewhere, demanding Bilbo's removal. Bilbo is the object of at least two investigations which may well result in a Bilbo-less Senate.

We feverently hope that Bilbo will not be seated when the Eightieth Congress convenes. But what if he is seated? Will the District of Columbia again be humiliated by the strutting self-styled "Mayor of Washington"?

According to Senate Rule XXIV, the Senate shall select, by ballot, the chairmen and members of the various standing committees. Washingtonians cannot vote for their mayor, but they do still have the right of petition as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Therefore, we feel that with a half-million signatures on our petition, the Senate can have no choice but to listen to the voice of the voteless citizens of Washington, who are determined not to be subjected to another term of Bilbo rule.

It is hoped that the Senate will recognize the American principle of Government by the governed and consider the part of the petition which says, "if we must be ruled as a colony, with taxation without representation, we implore our rulers to assign to the District Committee only Senators who believe in democracy, the Constitution, and the equal rights of all our citizens."

MYRTLE POWELL,
Executive secretary, Washington Committee, Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

Hotel Fires

In view of the destructive fires that occasionally occur throughout the country in "fireproof" hotels, should not a special study be made by the gvoerning bodies of cities to determine how such so-called fireproof structures often become roaring furnaces?

In my opinion the use of oil paints, which have some of the inflammable properties of gasoline, is one of the chief offenders. For example, in a hotel fire that occurred in Virginia several years ago, with loss of valuable lives, it appears that the halls of the hotel, soon after the fire started, burst into flames due to the use of many coats of oil paint used throughout the years in decorating the halls. Also, in a somewhat recent hotel fire in Illinois, it appears that the wooden stairway railings burst into a sticky, seething mass of flame due to the many coats of paint thereon. A test made of most any wooden door taken from a hotel room would no doubt surprise most anyone as to its heat units and inflammability.

It appears that many of the furnishings of hotels, such as carpets and curtains could be replaced by materials, fireproof in fact, as, for example, textiles made of fiber glass.

But whatever the causes of these dangers, they should be determined and remedied.

"FAO Board"

When you say, in your editorial "FAO Board" of November 1, that you are "unreservedly glad" that the United States has reversed its stand on the world food board. I presume that you have confidence in the willingness (and ability) of the State Department to make the International Trade Organization do what it claims that the Food and Agriculture Organization would be unable to accomplish.

It seems to me that the problem of food distribution is unique for the precise reason that, as you have pointed out, it is impossible to foresee with accuracy what the supply will be in any given year or to know in what area of the world there will be surpluses and where there will be shortages and famine. The Orr plan is a means of compensating for the unpredictability of supply by making the surpluses of one year or one area available to take care of shortages which occur in other years and other areas. As such, is it not an opportunity for America to share her usual abundance with those peoples of the world who suffer for the lack of products which often glut our markets, at the same time saving our farmers from the future ills of deflated agricultural prices in an overabundant American market?

You say that the Orr plan, run by the United Nations, would be an expensive undertaking. Is it not also expensive for American citizens to pay high taxes so the Government can pay the farmers to limit and destroy crops so the citizens in turn can pay higher prices for the food they have on their tables? One of the fundamental tenets of modern economic thought is that the world has never had an overabundance of anything, though maldistribution causes what appears to be overabundance in certain areas. The FAO offered us a chance to attack that problem by providing us with an ever-ready world market for our agricultural products.

In reversing his position, Undersecretary of Agriculture Dodd stated that it is doubtful whether a world food board could deal adequately with "the effect that widespread Government intervention threatens to have upon the agricultural demand and supply situation over the world once the present emergency has come to an end." But why have national governments found it necessary to intervene? Is it not because of the shortages and the superficial overabundances which pertain to national agricultural economies?

Wouldn't the need for such intervention be diminished by the presence of an international food board which could facilitate the buying and selling of food at fairly stable prices on an international scale? Furthermore, it is questionable whether the Orr plan would cost our Government any more than its various intervention schemes have already cost.

When you say that this country has had painful first-hand experience with commodity stabilization programs, I believe you are making the grave error of comparing the Orr plan with our wartime price control and economic stabilization program. The latter was characterized by the use of arbitrary controls designed to prevent a disastrous inflation during a period of war and reconversion when consumer demands could not be met and the law of supply and demand would be inoperable. It was bound to be a difficult program because of the inflationary pressure resulting from the channeling of supplies to meet war needs rather than consumer demands.

The Orr plan, which is designed to meet the problems of peace, is an attempt to make the law of supply and demand better than it has ever had a chance to work before and to stabilize prices primarily through the working of that law. It should aid the farmer by providing a ready market for his products, and it should aid the world consumer by making available a constant supply to meet his demands. In both ways it should prove useful in decreasing political and economic unrest.

Cynical as I am about the State Department's stand (It is significant that it was the State Department and not the Department of Agriculture which opposed the plan), I can only imagine what people in other parts of the world will think. The State Department has constantly reiterated that it will do all in its power to make the United Naions work. In he signing of the Atlantic Charter, we pledged ourselves to fight the war so that people everywhere could have freedom from fear and freedom from want. Our support of the Orr plan would be an effective means of pursuing those objectives.

"Lisner Auditorium"

You are to be commended for your splendid editorial of October 31 on the Lisner Auditorium. It calls us back to the basic principles upon which our Government was founded. Washington, as the capital of the Nation, is truly a city that belongs to all Americans and should reflect the cosmopolitan spirit that should characterize the District of Columbia.

In a very real sense, at the moment, the District of Columbia is the world's capital and if the spirit of the United Nations can't work here, how do we hope that it will have success elsewhere in the world?

I do hope that your editorial will be the means of rallying all of us to a dedication to the true American spirit of equality, fair play and justice to all; and that racial discrimination and segregation and other unfair practices shall be speedily removed from the Washington scene. This end is imperative at a time when the whole world is recovering from the ravages of war caused by prejudice and narrow racism and the peoples of the earth—of all races, colors and creeds—look to America for enlightened leadership.

Occupational Trend

By Malvina Lindsay

Glamour Jobs

THIS NATION now faces a critical shortage of teachers and nurses. It also needs country doctors and preachers. These occupational scarcities of key people may take a toll of ignorance, ill health and spiritual callousness for generations.

Meantime, young people swarm (or try to swarm) into radio, aircraft, technology, fashion, advertising, public relations, personnel counseling, and the more genteel and better paid fields of industry.

Is this wholly a pursuit of money? Will raising salaries in the basic humanitarian occupations change the drift?

Recent investigations of teacher and nurse shortages have shown that these vocations have failed to keep pace with the times in salaries and working conditions. And village and rural doctors and ministers long ago discovered that their labors must be largely for love.

YET THERE are other forces besides money that have helped bring about vacant schoolrooms and understaffed hospitals. Many job seekers of today, especially young women, say employment authorities, want glamorous, or at least what they call interesting, jobs. They want those that not only pay well, but that provide good "contacts," opportunities to "get somewhere" in a hurry, and that are on the "exciting" or the executive side. Also, many of them don't want to be "tied" to desks or routines.

Today's job seekers put much emphasis on opportunities to meet and deal with people. Hence the great interest in public relations, in personnel work and counseling, in such glamour fields as the three-billion-dollar fashion industry.

While courses in teacher training have lagged for recruits since before the war, schools for social workers have done a good business. Now they are swamped with applicants. Some have even closed their registration for 1947.

This has not been as much due to the humanitarian impulse as might appear. The social service field has always been short of workers, and has generally paid better salaries than has teaching. War activities helped interest new recruits in it. Moreover, its training now offers a passport to such "interesting" pursuits as personnel work, industrial counseling, the growing fields of medical and psychiatric social service, and to what is even more alluring, the international social work field, with opportunities to go abroad.

THE MAGIC of the new has great appeal for job seekers. Often young women will take less salary to get their feet in the doors of radio and aircraft than they would be paid in offices of old line industries. The movies, too, have helped whet young America's appetite for glamorous work. Celluloid careerists are usually young men or women who live fabulous lives as advertising or public relations executives, or as fashion models or consultants. Also, today's easier living has made the probation of nurse or rural teacher harder to take.

Most serious aspect of the lack of volunteers for teaching, nursing and ministering to bodies and souls of people in dull, remote regions is that it reflects a growing national spirit of materialism. What use to bribe people into becoming teachers, nurses, preachers and doctors if they do not bring enthusiasm and dedication to their tasks?

A general false set of values on the part of the Nation is responsible for these public service callings being underpaid in comparison with the technological and promotional fields that the industrial age has developed. It is responsible for the unhappy working conditions in them, and for the lack of appreciation their followers receive.

But this same materialism expresses itself in the widespread tendency of those choosing or carrying on careers to appraise jobs on a "gimme" basis, in terms of money or glamour, and to think less, if at all, of the obligation and opportunity to give in return. The service ideal in American life seems in danger of being lost. Perhaps a revival of the zeal for making the world better that has swept America periodically throughout its history is long overdue.

Md. Democrats Win Majority In Legislature

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Democrats are assured of a working majority in both houses when the Maryland General Assembly convenes in January, but by smaller margins than they had enjoyed in all sessions for a decade or more.

Unofficial results showed 18 Democrats and 11 Republicans were elected to the 29 State Senate places.

Of the 123 House of Delegates seats, 64 went to Democrats, 34 to Republicans, and 25 were undecided.

The Republicans took Senate seats held by Democrats in the Fourth District of Baltimore City, and Dorchester, Garrett, Harford and Montgomery counties, while the Democrats gained seats held by Republicans in Caroline, Cecil and Calvert counties.

Incumbent Senators who lost included Bernard I. Gonder (D., Garrett), J. Wilmer Cronin (D., Harford) and E. Milton Altfeld (D. Baltimore (Fourth).

Gonder was unseated by Lawrence M. Fraley, Howard S. O'Neill defeated Cronin, and Altfeld lost to former Representative Daniel Ellison.

The most striking gains were registered by the Republicans in Montgomery County, where the entire GOP legislative slate won election. Four years ago the county sent a solid Democratic bloc to the legislature.

Some of Losers Listed

Among the incumbent delegates who fell by the wayside in yesterday's voting were Ulysses Griffith (D., Montgomery), Genevieve Wells (D., Montgomery), Curtis C. Larrimore (D., Talbot), Myron L. Bloom (D., Washington), and Harry W. Zeigler (R., Washington) and Alan Webb (D., Dorchester).

Baltimore city's usual solid Democratic representation in the legislature was cracked by Ellison.

Four years ago, the Democrats elected 20 Senators to nine for the Republicans, and 101 delegates to 22 for the Republicans.

The incomplete list of successful candidates (x-denotes incumbent):

Allegany County (all Republicans): Senate—*Robert B. Kimble. House—Noel Speir Cook, John T. Fey, *Charles M. Gee, William E. Geppert, *Lester B. Reed, Horace P. Whitmore.

Anne Arundel: Senate—*Wilbur R. Dulin (D.).

Baltimore County: Senate—William P. Bolton (D.).

Calvert: Senate—Louis L. Goldstein (D.). House—James E. Hance (D.), *John W. Hall.

Sgt. Henson Feted At VMI Review

Lexington, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Master Sergt. Ed Henson, whose 26 years of Army service were spent on duty with the military detachment at Virginia Military Institute, was guest of honor at a full dress review of the Cadet Corps Tuesday.

In reviewing the corps, Sergeant Henson, who retired recently and now makes his home on a farm outside of Lexington, was accorded honors customarily paid officers of general rank in the United States or foreign armies.

The review was arranged by Maj. Gen. Richard J. Marshall, V. M. I. superintendent, as a gesture of appreciation for Sergeant Henson's long service.

Portsmouth Defeats Municipal Power Plan

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—A city council proposal for a $4,200,000 bond issue to finance establishment of a municipal electric power service was turned down by Portsmouth voters yesterday, 2930 to 2420. A citizens committee and the Virginia Electric & Power Co. opposed the proposal.

Gov. Tuck Receives Second Parking Ticket

South Boston, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Governor Tuck, here to vote in Tuesday's senatorial and congressional elections, received his second parking ticket in a matter of a few weeks in his home town.

In fact, the Governor's Packard was parked at the same meter where on October 11 a South Boston policeman tagged the Ford automobile which the Governor and his executive secretary, William Armistead 3d, parked on a downtown street here.

Versatile Lane

Western Md. Finally Gives A Governor

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—William Preston Lane, jr., Hagerstown publisher, today became the first Maryland Governor elected from the western section of the State in more than half a century.

W. P. Lane

Tall, soft-spoken and personable, Lane is conceded to be one of the most versatile figures to appear on the Maryland political scene in a generation. He is businessman, banker, lawyer, newspaper publisher and former soldier—and the campaign just ended has proved him an astute politician as well.

He was born in Hagerstown in 1892 of a family which had lived in the rolling hills of Washington County since Revolutionary War days. He was educated at Hagerstown schools and the University of Virginia, graduating in 1915, and began the practice of law in Hagerstown the following year.

Was Army Captain

His military career began with the Mexican border incident, in which he served with the National Guard. It continued in World War I, in which he was an infantry captain in France.

Lane's incursion in politics came during the administration of the late Governor Albert C. Ritchie, under whom he served as State Attorney General for four years in the early 1930's. It was during this period that he gained a reputation as a fearless champion of minority rights, by his personal intervention an an effort to prevent an Eastern Shore lynching.

He was named Democratic national committeeman in 1940, carying the State for President Roosevelt in that heated campaign. At its end he addressed a statement of thanks to the CIO-Political Action Committee, for its aid in the Democratic victory, a move that drew severe criticism both in the primary campaign last June and in the contest just ended.

Lane's Platform

During both those campaigns feelings ran high, but Lane seldom allowed himself to be sidetracked from the kind of fight he had mapped out for himself. He disavowed communist support and stuck steadfastly to what he considered the issues: State affairs.

His program included better pay for teachers, increased budgets for State mental institutions, construction of a Chesapeake Bay bridge, expansion of the State's highway system, and application of most of the recommendations of the Sherbow Commission on redistribution of tax revenues among the municipalities and counties.

Lane married the former Dorothy Byron of Hagerstown in 1922. They have two daughters, Dorothy Byron, 22, a Vassar graduate, and Jean Cartwright, 19, a sophomore at the same college.

Jail Commitments Of Va. Juveniles Drop in Month

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Although commitments to Virginia jails during July rose 17.88 per cent over the corresponding month of 1945, the State Board of Corrections took encouragement from a decline in commitments of juveniles.

"Every age group of juveniles showed a decreases for the month of July, 1946, except the 11-year group, which showed an increase of one for the same month as reported for July, 1945," a report of the board said. "In comparison, every age group of adults showed an increase except the group of 18-year-olds which was exactly the same as reported for July, 1945."

The July commitments totaled 8,424, including 5,198 white males, an increase of 26.07 per cent, and 2,321 Negroes, an increase of 18.96 per cent.

The over-all decline in juvenile commitments was 29.22 per cent.

Winchester Flier Reported Missing

Winchester, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Whitlock of this city have been notified that their son, T/Sergt. Wilbur Whitlock, AAF, has been reported missing on an ATC flight from San Juan, Porto Rico, to Vernon Field, Jamaica.

Sergt. Whitlock is a veteran of five years service in the Army Air Corps. Together with Mrs. Whitlock, the former Rebecca Adams, of this city, he has been residing in San Juan. The local airman has three brothers.

Warrenton Man Heads Hotel Ass'n

Natural Bridge, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Virginia Hotel Association ended its two-day convention here yesterday after electing Barney H. Harris of Warrenton as president, and Richard B. Keeley, manager of the Monticello Hotel, Norfolk, as vice president.

A. Gerald Bush, manager of the Jefferson Hotel, Richmond, treasurer; Leonard K. Baber, manager of the John Marshall, Richmond, governor, and Harris Mitchell of Richmond, executive secretary, all were reelected for a second term.

Sheaffer Votes Extra

Fort Madison, Iowa, Nov. 6 (AP).—The W. A. Sheaffer Pen Co. today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents over the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common stock. Both will be payable November 25 to holders of record November 15.

Va. Democrats Record Usual Sweeping Win

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Virginia Democrats chalked up sweeping victories in two Senate and all nine House contests in marked contrast to a national Republican landslide which won control of Congress.

The solidly Democratic State delegation will participate in a Congress which will see far-reaching changes in officials and committees as a result of yesterday's general election.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd won election to his third full term and A. Willis Robertson to a short term in the Senate by better than 2-to-1 majorities over Republicans Lester S. Parsons and Robert H. Woods.

Flannigan Margin Small

Representative John W. Flannagan won by a comparatively close margin over S. H. Sutherland, Clintwood Republican, in the Ninth in contrast to big majorities piled up by the other eight Democratic House candidates.

Returns from 242 of the 249 precincts gave Flannagan 19,964 votes to 16,892 for Sutherland, and 2,030 for John Albert Goodpasture, Bristol independent.

Other Associated Press returns from 1578 of the State's 1721 precincts gave Byrd 159,448 votes to 75,619 for Parsons. Robertson, who resigned as Seventh District Representative to run as the Democratic nominee for the unexpired term of the late Senator Carter Glass, won by an even larger majority. The incomplete returns showed 164,582 for Robertson and 71,003 for Woods.

Minor party and independent candidates, with returns of their votes less complete, trailed far behind.

Results by Districts

Other House contests:

First District—Representative S. Otis Bland, dean of the Virginia delegation, defeated Walter Johnson, Heathsville Republican. Returns from 157 of 162 precincts gave Bland 15,326 votes to 5247 for Johnson.

Second District—Porter Hardy, jr., who defeated Representative Ralph H. Daughton in the Democratic primary, won from Sidney H. Kelsey, Norfolk Republican. Returns from 129 of 136 precincts gave Hardy 18,120 votes and Kelsey 9736.

Third District—Representative J. Vaughan Gary turned back a bid by Earle Lutz, Richmond Republican. The vote from 120 of 125 precincts was Gary 21,816; Lutz, 7922.

Fourth District—Representative Patrick H. Drewry far outstripped A. S. Condrey, Prohibitionist. Returns from 124 of 153 precincts gave Drewry 11,936 to 1714 for Condrey.

Fifth District—Thomas B. Stanley, speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates, won easily from W. L. Creasy, Republican. Stanley received 16,539 votes to 5541 for Creasy on the basis of returns from 199 of 238 precincts.

Sixth District—Representative J. Lindsay Almond, elected to the House last January to succeed former Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, defeated Frank Angell, Republican, receiving 19,786 votes to 10,374 for Angell in returns from 172 of 187 precincts.

Seventh District—Burr P. Harrison, Democrat, seeking to succeed Representative Robertson, defeated Carl Jenkins, Republican. The vote in returns from 232 of 255 precincts was 17,486 for Harrison and 11,569 for Jenkins.

Eighth District—Representative Howard W. Smith won from Lawrence Michael, Republican. Returns from 207 of 216 precincts gave Smith 21,222 votes to 13,709 for Michael.

The less complete returns for minor candidates for the long Senate term against Byrd gave Clark T. Robb, Socialist, 1142; Alice Burke, Communist, 2406; Howard H. Carwile, Independent, 3839, and Thomas E. Boorde, Prohibitionist, 979.

Lawrence S. Wilkes, Socialist in the short-term race, received 3769.

Exceed Primary Margin

Republicans, in their effort to capitalize on anti-Byrd and "anti-machine" sentiment, apparently received few if any more votes than Martin A. Hutchinson in his Democratic primary fight against the "Byrd machine." Hutchinson received 81,605 votes in the primary. Byrd and Robertson received considerably more general election votes than the 141,823 Byrd received in the primary.

The incomplete returns showed Byrd was trailing his Republican opponent, Parsons, in Buchanan, Dickenson and Smyth in the Ninth, Page in the Seventh, and Grayson in the Fifth. Robertson was headed by Woods in Grayson, Shenandoah in the Seventh, and Dickenson, Scott, Smyth, Tazewell and Washington in the Ninth. Byrd was behind in South Norfolk on the basis of complete returns. Robertson was behind in Greene and Giles, with returns complete, and was trailing in Bland, with incomplete returns. Byrd was trailing in Floyd.

Gen. Truscott to Talk At Orange County Rites

Orange, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Lieut Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, known as the "Beachhead General" has accepted an invitation to review the parade and make the address at the Armistice Day celebration to be held here under the direction of the Orange County War Memorial Association on November 11.

The exercises will take place on the site of the proposed War Memorial Building following the parade which starts at 10:30 a. m.

VEA Group to Meet

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—The organizational meeting of Virginia Education's Commission to study teacher requirement will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. at VEA headquarters here, Robert F. Williams, executive secretary, announced today.

Berkeley Approves Special School Levy

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.).—Voters of Berkeley county validated a special levy at the election yesterday by a vote of 4670 in favor as against 2218 opposed. A 60 per cent favorable vote was necessary to approve.

The special levy, to run not more than three years and to raise about $80,000 a year, was asked for the purpose of continuing a $25-a-month extra salary for teachers over and above the State basic which has been paid the past three years until a similar special levy for salaries alone; to pay off an operational deficit incurred by the school board the past year; to assure the full nine-months' term of school as against the eight and three-quarters threatened because of lack of funds; and to make certain necessary repairs to buildings and get new equipment.

Falmouth to Advertise For Water System Bids

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). The Stafford County Board of Supervisors yesterday authorized the Falmouth water committee to advertise for bids for laying water lines across the Rappahannock River from Fredericksburg to the village and inside the community.

Falmouth will obtain its water from Fredericksburg on a rental basis.

The supervisors authorized Superintendent of Schools T. Benton Gayle to endeavor to obtain surplus Government supplies for the project. The board also named its chairman, Julian V. Brooks, and Commonwealth's Attorney R. H. L. Chichester to serve on the water committee.

Hunters Ordered From W. Va. Woods Due to Fire Peril

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Hunters were ordered out of West Virginia forests today as a precautionary measure because of the extreme forest fire hazard existing at this time," Conservation Director Jack Shipman announced.

Shipman directed the suspension of all open hunting seasons effective at 6 p. m. (EST) today, the end of a 24-hour notice required by State law.

He took action after the commission received reports of 85 new forest fires in addition to a number of others still burning in the woodlands, where warm, dry weather has created hazardous conditions.

The suspension affects saesons on squirrel, grouse and turkey, which opens October 5, and remains in effect until further notice. Other seasons normally would open on November 11, and Shipman said he hoped to be able to permit resumption of the sport by that time.

Farm Exhibit Slated

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 6.—The Bel Alton High School on Friday will sponsor a farm exhibit. W. B. Posey, tobacco specialist, of Upper Marlboro will be the guest speaker. A luncheon will be followed by a coronation of harvest king and queen.

Va. Police Hold Florida Boy in Father's Death

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Richmond police today arrested a man listed as Preston Randolph Weadon, 20, of Jacksonville, Fla., at the request of Jacksonville police who said that Justice of the Peace T. O. Holmes had issued a murder warrant for the man in connection with the shooting of his father yesterday.

Weadon waived extradition, police said.

At Jacksonville, County Highway Patrolmen B. F. Fields and George Taylor reported Charles Henry Weadon, 46-year-old sawmill operator of near Jacksonville, was shot twice and killed instantly at his home early yesterday.

Vanished After Slaying

The patrolmen quoted Mrs. Dorothy Weadon, stepmother of the youth held here, as saying that she, her husband and young Weadon had been out during the evening and that the son had been drinking. Mrs. Weadon said, the patrolmen continued, that the son threatened her with a pistol when they returned home, that she fled and heard two shots as she left the house, and that when she returned she found her husband dead in bed and the younger man gone.

Young Weadon's arrest here came in response to a telegram received from Jacksonville police, when Detective Lieut. Earle A. Kelley, accompanied by Sergt. H. H. Meeks and Second Station Officer Carter, went to the local bus terminal to meet a bus on which Jacksonville authorities said Weadon was traveling to Washington.

Attacked Officer

Lieutenant Kelley said the officers asked the youth his name as he alighted from the bus. Without warning the youth hurled his suitcase at Kelley's legs, temporarily knocking the detective lieutenant off balance, and fled, Kelley added.

The detective lieutenant said the youth pulled a .32-caliber pistol from his trousers as he fled. The three officers gave chase and in the purs

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

IT HAS BEEN exactly 16 years since anyone save a Democratic elevator operator, doorkeeper, or page-boy drew a salary for chewing gum and pretending to administer to the needs of Congressmen in the halls of the Capitol. For sixteen long years, Republicans have been out in the very cold, patronageless world.

Now, however, comes the big job of transfer. Beginning with the new Republican Congress in January, 600 Democratic guards, ushers, clerks, stenographers, stationery room workers, sergeants-at-arm et al will get their walking papers, and 600 Republicans will take their places.

Most important of all, however, will be the new chairmen of committees, since the committees of Congress shape legislation far more than most people realize. Republican chairmen for the next two years will definitely affect the course of the Nation.

Here is the roll call of the most important committees and the Republicans who will run them:

FOREIGN AFFAIRS — Under Congressman Charles Eaton of New Jersey, the House Foreign Affairs Committee will continue a nonpartisan Truman-Roosevelt policy. Born in Canada, trained as a Baptist preacher, addicted to red neckties, Congressman Eaton has been a stanch supporter of U. S.-World cooperation. When isolationist former Congressman Ham Fish tried to dictate GOP policy on the Foreign Affairs Committee, Eaton was continually at his throat. As a result, FDR invited the New Jersey Representative to the White House rather than Fish. Eaton has occupied pulpits in Toronto, Cleveland, New York, was once editor of Leslie's Weekly, served as Canadian correspondent for the New York Tribune and the Boston Transcript.

WAYS AND MEANS—Harold Knutson of Minnesota, new chairman of this vital committee, is bad news both to his party and the country. He voted against practically every defense measure before Pearl Harbor, claimed "Hitler is displaying a forbearance that might well be emulated by statesmen of other countries." . . . "Personally," proclaimed the brazen Mr. Knutson, "I cannot see much difference between Germany's actions in Norway and the New Deal program in this country."

Knutson is noisy, irrepressible, publicity-loving, has a mania for cutting taxes, especially in the higher brackets . . . He once made a bitter attack on the late Cardinal Mundelein for favoring the reorganization bill . . . When Time magazine called him "Fuzzy," Congresswoman Luce, wife of Time's publisher, smoothed it over by reciting Kipling's poem, "Fuzzy Wuzzy." Her irate colleague purred . . . Knutson will be God's gift to high-bracket taxpayers, no gift to the little fellows.

APPROPRIATIONS — This is the all-important committee which decides how much the Government can spend. Its new chairman will be John Taber of Auburn, N. Y., a bank director and president of a water company. He is the bull-in-the-china-closet type who once engaged in a fist fight with Congressman Cannon of Missouri and who yells so loud that he once restored the hearing of the late Congressman Leonard Schuetz of Chicago. Schuetz always used an ear trumpet on the floor, but during one of Taber's bellowing tirades a nerve in his ear was restored and he discarded the trumpet.

Taber glories in his reputation as a penny pincher. He delighted in chopping New Deal expenditures, but once brought great grief to his isolationist colleagues by making a speech strongly defending seven billions for lend-lease.

Colleagues were once aghast when Taber berated the Wild Life Division of the Interior Department for paying $11,500 to Mrs. E. Eugene Lay for land near the Finger Lakes for which she wanted $16,500. Taber demanded that the Interior Department be penalized for this penny-pinching by killing its entire nine million dollars for wild life. It turned out that Mrs. Lay was a constituent of Congressman Taber's.

UN-AMERICAN AFFAIRS—New chairman will be J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, bald, a snappy dresser and a wordy wrangler. His last name once was Feeney, but he changed it to more high-sounded "J. Parnell Thomas." Thomas is a Wall Street broker on leave from Paine, Webber & Co. If he had his way, the Un-American Committee would spend all its time harrying labor leaders. He will out-Rankin Rankin and former Congressman Ham Fish will be very happy.

RULES COMMITTEE—New chairman of this all-important committee, which decides what legislation can or cannot go to the floor of the House, will be Leo Allen of Illinois. Allen is pure Illinois corn-bred, is Republican leader Joe Martin's closest friend, talks little, is a middle-of-the-road conservative, does exactly what Joe Martin tells him. In the first World War he had a good record as a Field Artillery sergeant.

AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE—New chairman of this important body will be Cliff Hope of Garden City, Kans., probably the ablest member of Congress in either party when it comes to agriculture. Hope wrote most of Wendell Willkie's farm speeches and was scheduled to be Willkie's Secretary of Agriculture had Willkie been elected. Hope talks little, moves slowly, works hard. He is coauthor of the Bill for Farm Research, believes that the USA must get ready to take care of farm surpluses again, should begin now to study quick freezing, new packaging of farm products.

THE VETERANS COMMITTEE—This important committee will now shift from the chairmanship of Mississippi's rootin'-tootin' John Rankin to that of a hard-working, effective lady—Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, Mass. Mrs. Rogers is one of the oldest members of Congress from the point of service, having succeeded her husband in 1925. She has served the Government 25 years, is 64 years old, and not afraid to state her age.

Her husband was author of the Rogers Act which created the American career diplomatic service. Ever since, Mrs. Rogers has kept up her interest in foreign affairs, as well as doing a terrific job for her district. Few Congressmen work harder and get more accomplished. Probably she got more favors from the Democratic Administration than the average Democrat.

As a long-time member of the Veterans Committee, Mrs. Rogers has been battling bitterly with Chairman Rankin; will be a vast improvement over the gentleman from Mississippi.

RIVERS AND HARBORS—New chairman probably will be George A. Dondero of Royal Oak, Mich., home town of Father Coughlin. Dondero served in Congress for 13 years, is one of three Congressmen of Italian descent, the others, D'Alesandro of Baltimore and Marcantonio of New York, being much more in evidence. Dondero is a great expert on Lincoln, boasted of friendship with the late Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the Civil War President, is nice, conservative, harmless. For a time he let his office be used by Walter Steele, a vigorous, isolation lobbyist. After King George and Queen Mary came to the Capital, Dondero held out his hand to friends, saying "shake the hand that shook the hand of a King—and has held four kings a few times."

BANKING AND CURRENCY—This committee formulates all legislation dealing with Federal Reserve System, national banks and fiscal policy. New chairman will be Jesse Wolcott if Michigan, sometimes called the "General Motors representative in Congress." Wolcott is roly-poly, smart, has a sense of humor, sets policy for members of his party on fiscal affairs. First opposed to the British loan, he later championed it. Wolcott will move to knock out Federal Reserve Board Chairman Eccles' policy of discouraging installment buying. Big bankers will wear broad smiles when Wolcott takes over this committee.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE—Chairman of this committee which deals with railroads, telephones, and telegraphs is veteran Representative Charles A. Wolverton of Merchantville, N. J. Though Wolverton has served in Congress longer than most colleagues, he doesn't hesitate to vote with the Democrats when it comes to labor and consumers. He voted against every crippling OPA amendment, has the reputation of putting the country ahead of party.

INDIAN AFFAIRS — Karl Mundt of South Dakota, new chairman of this committee, is effective, resourceful, refreshing, packs weight with his colleagues. Mundt differs with Sol Bloom on everything pertaining to foreign affairs; hates Russia and once remonstrated good-naturedly with Ibn Saud, ruler of Saudi Arabia, that he and other Congressmen should be allowed to peek into the ruler's harem. Mundt was a vigorous isolationist, revised his views during the war. He cracked down on Ernie Adamson, counsel of the Rankin Committee, for opposing democracy and once kidded Russian chess players in Moscow that they were taking unfair advantage of American competitors by beginning their games at midnight.

NATIONAL DEFENSE—Under the new reorganization of Congress, the former Naval and Military Affairs Committees will be merged into one, probably under the chairmanship of Representative Walter (Ham) Andrews of Buffalo, N. Y. Andrews is a conservative, conscientious Congressman with a good record in World War I, who believes that the sun rises and sets with the brass hats. The Army will get what it wants from him. He will be a big improvement, however, over the retiring gentleman from Kentucky, Andrew Jackson May.

FROM SOUTH BEND, Ind., comes the reminder that Notre Dame is a great university, not a football team. Notre Dame is proud as all get-out of its football team with the attached lament that because of its football success Notre Dame is "the school that nobody knows."

POVICH

To offset the growing tendency to consider Notre Dame merely as a successful football foundry, the school authorities have engaged as a high-powered publicity director Col. John V. Hinkle, former Washington Post sports writer and New York Times foreign correspondent. Hinkle sets forth that Notre Dame's "less spectacular but more vital contributions to the spiritual, cultural, patriotic and intellectual life of America" has been overshadowed by the school's gridiron feats.

Notre Dame has graduated more than 30,000 nonfootball-playing alumni, Hinkle points out. It's five accredited colleges, Arts and Letters, Science, law, English and commercial, are presided over by a faculty numbering 379 with many Protestants and Jews among the professors, and its academic standards demand an average grade of 77 per cent before degrees are conferred.

ON ITS South Bend campus, Notre Dame boasts the finest collegiate collection of art to be found in any United States college, with its Charles Wightman Gallery housing more than 300 canvases by Van Dyke, Murillo, Tintoretto, Sargeant and Reynolds. Its botanical library, fathered by Edward Lee Green, curator of the Smithsonian Institution, is unmatched with its 100,000 botanical specimens and 7000 volumes on the subject.

At Notre Dame in 1920, Father Julius Nieuwland of the Congregation of Holy Cross, was the first to compound the basic formula for synthetic rubber, the great indispensable of World War II. The world's first wind tunnel was developed by Dr. Albert Zahm, a Notre Dame man who holds the Guggenheim chair of aeronautics at the Library of Congress. Out of Notre Dame's chemical laboratories came the first experiments with acetylene gas and they are now the scene of vast work with antimalarial drugs.

To another Notre Dame man, Dr. Charles Price, went the American Chemical Society's 1946 award for distinguished work in organic chemistry, and the school's laboratory of bacteriology has been attracting world-wide notice with its work on germ-free techniques, electrostatic generators for atom finders and nuclear physics experiments.

A FRENCH priest, Rev. Edward Sorin of the Congregation of Holy Cross, founded Notre Dame in 1846, in as romantic a pioneering job as could be dumped into a historical novelist's lap. With six brothers of the order he built the original building of Notre Dame that still stands, and he attracted as his earliest student body six sons of fur trappers and other settlers of nearby South Bend.

Tuition was paid in pelts and other kind of the community which did not deal heavily in cash exchange. The entire wealth of the six priests totaled less than $400 and they were so poor at one period in those early days that they were without money or shoes. No legend is it that their poverty was such that only one of the priests could be outdoors at a time because only one pair of shoes were available.

To buy a much-needed axe, Father Sorin was financially pressed to the point that he had to sell a much-needed cow, and when in 1871 fire destroyed the main college building Father Sorin helped the laborers scrape the still-hot bricks of cement to hasten the start of rebuilding anew.

FROM THOSE original 10 acres, the Notre Dame campus burgeoned in the intervening years to a beauteous 1700 acres now boasting 46 buildings and 13 residence halls. And its student rolls total 4500. Student discipline is on a par with that of the Army and Naval Academies and liquor on the breath is cause for dismissal at South Bend.

At Notre Dame you find not only the traditionally great football teams, often unbeaten, but you can browse, too, in 3000 volumes of the Italian poet Dante, or in the finest Hibernian library in the world. You can visit the spot to which the first wireless message was ever sent sucessfully in the United States, or happen on the highly-scientific studies of the nature of the living cell, the nature of airborne epidemics, and vitamin research.

Notre Dame would like to have you know all this.

G. W. Coach Directs Team From 'Sick Car'

A CASE OF INFLUENZA forced George Washington's Coach Skip Stahley to stay in his car yesterday, but it couldn't keep him away from practice at the Colonials' Riverside field. Irish Hopes Are Jolted As Lujack Sprains Ankle

Army's Blaik Lauds Personnel of Foe

By Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP).—As Army's football team went through another strenuous practice session today for Saturday's struggle with Notre Dame, Coach Earl Blaik replayed the 1943 Army-Notre Dame tussle as a sort of strategic counter-attack to the Irish discussions of the humiliation they suffered in the past two years.

Blaik, as usual, insisted that Notre Dame has not only plenty of personnel but a tremendous incentive to win the game. Army hasn't either, in his analysis of the situation, but the red-thatched Army coach is doing his best to discout the last two tussels and bring up what happened the last time a really good Notre Dame team faced Army.

The Irish won, 26-0, then and Blaik insists that this year's Notre Dame team is far superior to the 1943 outfit. Notre Dame, in fact hasn't been extended all season and has concentrated ever since last spring on one thing—beating Army.

Cadets Have Been Tested

By contrast, the thin Cadet squad has been forced to go all out at least twice this season, against Oklahoma and Michigan, and the coaches have had to go all out for virtually every game. Even when Army figures to win handily there were immediate problems that kept the coaching staff from looking far ahead to the November 9 contest.

Actual preparations for Notre Dame didn't begin until last week, Blaik said today and then it was more from the coaching standpoint than real work by the players. Tired and in danger of staleness after a long season which has seen the regulars in action more than their usual time, the athletes indulged only in light drills before the West Virginia game.

This week they're working harder, but contact work is limited to short periods each day and it has been noticeable that the three "big" backs, Dos Blanchard, Glenn Davis and Arnold Tucker, have been held out of the scrimmages.

Regulars Face Long Day

The prospects are that Army's starting team will be kept in the game for the greater part of 60 minutes if the weather is suitable, Blaik indicated, although he refused to predict how long they would play.

"I have seen Army teams play 60-minute ball and win," he remarked. "In 1931, when we faced Marchy Schwartz, Marty Brill and Joe Savoldi, we used only 12 men against Notre Dame and won. O lot depends on conditions. Ie was cold that day."

Returning to his favorite topics, Notre Dame's personnel and incentive, Blaik said.

Irish Personnel Praised

"I think this is the best personnel I ever have seen at Notre Dame. From what I saw last Saturday, Gerry Cowhig is every bit as good as Creighton Miller was in 1943. I think Johnny Lujack is a much better passer than Angelo Bertelli; he passed well enough against us in 1943, completing 7 of 14 passes. And I don't think they were too much concerned about the Navy game. Even when the Midshipmen were down near the goal line they looked indifferent and the coaches didn't appeared worried. And Navy didn't score on four shots.

At the suggestion that the Army team, winner of 25 consecutive games might also have an incentive Blaik nodded his head but qualified his assent by pointing out that the pressure and the odds against winning increased with each game.

"I think the boys realize it is a great challenge," he agreed. "It is a team of great character and the players have considerable pride in rpresenting themselves as well as th Military Academy."

Notre Dame Works On Special Defense

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP).—Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame's sparking quarter back, suffered a sprained right ankle today in the final Irish workout for their important game with the Army at New York Saturday.

Dr. Joseph Caton, Notre Dame physician, ordered Lujack to remain in the infirmary overnight to undergo treatment. The ankle was immediately taped and plunged into cold water to reduce the swelling.

Dr. Caton would make no prediction as to Lujack's chances of playing Saturday.

The accident occurred when Lujack, operating in a defensive position to intercept a pass, collided with Frank Kosikowski, right end from Milwaukee, Wis., as they ran down the field. Lujack doubled up in pain, but limped off the field later.

The injury was a shock to Head Coach Frank Leahy and members of his staff:

Irish Set Defenses For the 'TD' Twins

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP).—The chances are Coach Frank Leahy has never bet the horses in his life, but the master is reverting to the pony-investors basic theory of "playing the percentage" to rig up Notre Dame's special defenses designed to at least slow down you-know-who in the collision with Army Saturday.

The master tipped just enough of his hand today to inform you of that as he talked a bit about the secret roadblocks he's been figuring on setting up in Yankee Staium.

At the same time, too, he contemplated sadly the news that Floyd Simmons, the Oregon galloper who only hit his peak in the Navy game last weekend, is injured and is virtually certain to be left behind here in South Bend when the 36-man squad leaves at 4 p. m. tomorrow for the five-star scramble.

A lot of the new wide-open offense to be put on display for the Cadets was built around the 195-pounder from Portland until he ruptured a blood vessel in his right leg in practice Monday. And today, school physician Dr. Joseph Caton said flatly that unless there was a marked nad considerable improvement before noon tomorrow, Simmons stays home.

Czarabski Doubtful

It also appeared right tackle Ziggy Czarobski would be in there banging away only for a short while, at best, if he takes the train ride. He's nursing a torn hip muscle from the Navy game, and remained on the doubtful list today.

In setting up his special defenses, Leahy took into consideration his definite belief that Glenn Davis and Dos Blanchard aren't limited to running to the outside and inside, respectively of opposing hopeful defenders.

"Davis can come through the line at you too," he explained, "and they can send Blanchard around us. So you can't set your defenses only to stop Davis wide and Blanchard in close. You have to build them in such a manner as to stop either one of them, no matter where they come a-running.

"In other words, if it were one of them one way and one the other, only, by weakening spots on the field you could set it up so they could never, for instance, go around you.

Must Play Percentages

"But with two backs like Davis and Blanchard, you have to get ready for either possibility. Simply, you have to play the percentages. Now, it's perfectly possible that our plan may not work. As a matter of fact, all of the special defenses probably won't stop Davis and Blanchard every time. But by setting up on a percentage basis, some of them should at least slow them down some of the time."

The ingredients in the stew will make it something like the sone-defense in basktball rathr than man-to-man, he admitted.

"Naturally, we figure to be scored on, even with these special set-ups, we firmly believe no team in the United States can hold Army to less than three touchdowns."

It might be remembered that the master's special defenses against Illinois stopped the blazing Buddy Young to a slow walk earlier in the season—holding him to 35 yards for the afternoon. And Buddy can romp a bit, too.

UCLA End Is Week's Line Star

By the Associated Press

For the second time this season Burr Baldwin, of UCLA, haled as an "out-of-this-world" end, has won the lineman of the week award in the Associated Press weekly poll.

Baldwin put on a topflight performance as the UCLANS routed St. Mary's, 46-20, last week. He scored three touchdowns, two on pass plays that covered 49 and 23 yards. The other six-pointer came when he scooped up a blocked kick. He was equally superb on defense.

Other "workhorses" of the forward line drew high praise. Weldon Humble, Rice guard, played such a terrific game against Texas Tech that Del Morgan, Tech coach, declared "I was glad to see Jess Neely take Humble out. I was afraid he was going to hurt some of my guards or backs."

W & M's Ramsey Cited

Joe Tereshinski, Georgia end; Bryant Meeks, South Carolina center; Knox Ramsey, William and Mary guard; Frank Wydo, Cornell tackle; Ed Mead, Princeton end; John Cannady, Indiana center, and David Schmidt, Kansas end, were among the others singled out for particular pats-on-the-back.

Meeks, proclaimed as a "solid nomination for All-America"; by Southern Conference admirers, threw one openfield block that left three Citadel men flat. Two had to be helped off the field. Tereshinski's end was not turned once as his team whipped Alabama, while Cannady's work alone virtually beat Pitt. He intercepted two passes, one of which set up a score, knocked down two other aerials, and threw a key block in Bob Cowan's 68-yard punt return.

Harrison's 140 Paces Golf

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP).—Dutch Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., stroked his way into the lead at the halfway mark of the 45th annual North and South open golf tournament today with a four-under par 68 for a total of 140 and a one-stroke margin over the veteran Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y.

Turnesa fired a 70 over the country's club's 6879-yard number two layout today to take second place by a stroke over Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., the pre-meet favorite and the year's leading money-winner. Hogan had 71 yesterday and duplicated that score today.

Three players were tied for fourth with 143. They were Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., Tommy Armour of Delray Beach, Fla., and Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va. Metz had 71 today, Armour posted a 32 on the frnot side but slipped to 39 on the back for 71, and Snead also had 71. Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., was seventh with 144, having had 73 yesterday and 71 today.

Lew Worsham continued to lead the Washington, D. D. contingent, chalking up his second straight 75 for 150. Brother Buck Worsham, a 76 shooter the first day, soared to 82 for 158. Other scores were Al Jamison, 79, 77—156; Roger Peacock 78, 79—157; Harry Griesmer, 78—no card. Baltimore entries scored as follows: Hugh McClelland, 82, 82—164; Frank Invernezzi, 81—no card; Jimmie Duke, 78—no card; Andy Gibson, 79, 79—158; and Ivan Gantz, 82, 78—160.

Baugh Says He'll Play Against Yanks

From his Rotan, Tex., home, "Slinging Sammy" Baugh yesterday phoned Redskin coach Turk Edwards he thought he would be able to play Sunday when the Boston Yanks are met in Griffith Stadium.

But Edwards isn't so sure.

Baugh suffered a torn rib cartilage Sunday against the Steelers in addition to receiving a severe charley-horse. Although Baugh told Edwards his leg was responding nicely to heat treatments, it is the torn rib cartilage Edwards is more concerned with.

Baugh last year tried to play against Cleveland in the championship playoff game with a similar injury and had to retire after only a few minutes. Unless Sammy is given an absolute okay by the club physician Saturday, he will remain on the sidelines against the Yanks, Edwards said yesterday.

Even if Baugh is pronounced fit, Edwards plans to use Jim Youel and Indian Jack Jacobs most of the game in Sammy's accustomed quarterback spot. Baugh, according to the Edwards plan, will be used only briefly, if at all, unless a dire emergency arises.

Sammy will be used, however, to hold the ball for any attempted field goals and on points after touchdowns—if any—AL COSTELLO.

Terps Regain Vern Seibert

University of Maryland's hopes for an upset victory in their homecoming joust with the Gamecocks of South Carolina Saturday at College Park rose a notch or two yesterday when it was learned Vern Seibert, fleetest ball carrier on the squad, would be available.

Seibert, who suffered a leg injury in last week's scrimmage with Temple, missed the William and Mary game last Saturday when the Terps took a 41-7 pasting. He was one of the stars in the Terps' 6-0 upset triumph over V. P. I. three weeks ago.

In addition to being the fastest Maryland back, now that Sammy Behr's three broken toes have sidelined him for the season, Seibert is one of the best pass grabbers on the squad as well as a capable pass defender. William and Mary scored four times against the Terps via passes and aerials indirectly led to a fifth.

The Gamecocks boast one of the South's outstanding chuckers in Harold (Bo) Hagan, and a freshman field general in Rex Enright's "T" formation.

Raba Will Play Against Eagles Despite Bad Knee

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Elmer Raba, Georgetown's prize quarterback who hasn't played in the Hoyas' last two games, will be ready for action Saturday against Boston College at Braves Field, Boston, it was indicated yesterday as the former Gonzaga High star went through a lengthy drill at the Hilltop . . . The triple-threater, still nursing a twisted knee, will be needed, too . . . One system of crystal-gazing spots B. C. an 18-point edge with the Eagles rated third in the East and Georgetown twelfth . . . On the games both played with Villanova the Eagles figure 19 points better, winning by 14-12 after the Hoyas lost, 19-2 . . .

Coach Jack Hagerty is still working on the Hoyas' spread offense despite its near-disastrous introduction against George Washington . . . A fumble by Reds Murphy on Georgetown's 16 led to the Colonials' tying score in the second period . . . Speaking of the G. W.-G. U. battle, one of the Hoyas' big breaks came when officials failed to notice the 12-man team they had on the field at one time . . . Bus Werder, being replaced at guard, was still on the field as Babe Baranowski intercepted Johhny Shullenbarger's pass at midfield.

Saturday's game with B. C. will be Paul Walsh's second against the Eagles, but a photograph almost forced the veteran halfback out of the lineup . . . Seems the sandy-haired youngster, a native of New Bedford, Mass., has been playing against his father's wishes and without his father's consent . . . Three weeks ago the New Bedford Standard Times decided t orun a picture of young Walsh . . . His father saw it despite the rest of the family's censorship of the sports pages in Paul's behalf . . . After a lengthy argument the elder Walsh relented and will attend Saturday's game with 500 other New Bedford fans of Paul's . . . They'll see Paul do his part toward avenging the Hoyas' 47-0 loss to the Eagles in 1942 . . .

A suggestion by Post Reader James S. Douglas of Alexandria, Va., that Georgetown arrange a game with Penn State for November 29 finds no favor in the eyes of the Hilltop . . . The Nittany Lions cancelled a game with Miami for that date and Georgetown winds up its schedule November 23 . . . Three of the last Hoyas to face Boston College, in 1942, died in action during the war . . . Eddie Agnew lost his life on Luzon in March 1945, Johnny Barrett was killed at Palau in September 1944, and Bob Duffey died in Germany in November 1944 . . .

The key to Boston College's dazzling comeback after losing its opener to Wake Forest seems to be at quarterback, where Freshmen Don Panciera and Ed Clasby are handling Coach Denny Myers' T-formation . . . Both have passing records over .500 . . . Panciera has thrown four touchdowns passes and booted 13 out of 15 tries for extra point.

No Suspension For Aldrich

Ki Aldrich, Scrappy Redskin center who was tossed out ow Sunday's game with the Pittsburgh Steelers in Pittsburgh by Referee Carl Rebele for "unsportsmanlike conduct," escaped fine or suspension after Commissioner Bert Bell talked sion, it was announced yesterday with the Redskin star from New York.

in view of Aldrich's lang and honorable term of service in the National Football League. Aldrich, in his conversation with Bell, told the Commissioner he did not touch Rebele nor did he use profane language until after he was bounced from the game.

Aldrich, and several more of the Redskins protested long and loudly at Referee Rebele when he ruled Dudley's attempted jump pass in the third period when the Steelers were leading, 7-0, was an incomplete pass. The Redskins claimed Dudley was hit before he got off the pass and fumbled.

Pep Sought For Bout Here

Promoter Joe Turner announced yesterday that he is bending every effort to secure the new National Guard Armory for a match between Willie Pep, the featherweight champion, and Herbie (Bif) Jones, the 19-year-old southeast southhpaw, provided the latter defeats Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore ace, Monday night at Turner's Arena.

Turner said that he and his matchmaker, Gabe Menendez, already had received a favorable word from Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, regarding such a match here, and that Viscusi indicated that "it could be for the title."

Turner stated he was ready to go the limit to stage the first fight at the Armory, as soon as it is cleared this winter.

Jones, product of the amateur ranks, has an impressive record, and easily could prove he rates the shot at Pep by beating McAllister, who held the champion to a draw last December in Baltimore.

Kusserow, Ill, May Miss Penn Game

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Columbia's hopes of upsetting Pennsylvania Saturday when the two Ivy League teams meet at Baker Bowl suffered a relapse today when Fullback Lou Kusserow, the Lions' regular fullback and leading ground gainer, was removed to Presbyterian Hospital suffering from a stomach ailment.

It was believed that Kusserow's sudden attack might turn out to be appendicitis but there would be no definite word pending a period of observation. In any event it was almost certain that he would not be able to play against Penn.

Harris Lists 7 'Key' Yanks

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Seven Yankees besides Jolting Joe DiMaggio are not for sale or barter, says Bucky Harris, newly appointed manager of the New York American Leaguers.

"We are out to make deals by the wholesale if they look as if they could help us," Harris said today. "But we will consider no propositions for Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Tommy Henrich, Snuffy Stirnweiss, Phil Rizzuto, Aaron Robinson, Yogi Berra and Bobby Brown. These players are set. We do not intend to disturb them."

DiMaggio, Keller and Henrich comprise the Yanks' varsity outfield while Stirnweiss and Rizzuto are mainstays of the infield. Robinson is a hard-hitting catcher and Catcher Berra and Infielder Brown both were brought up from the Yanks' Newark International League farm late in the recent season.

"In Joe DiMaggio we have the greatest outfielder in the American League," Harris added, "and I might say I know all about Ted Williams.

"Obviously our first move should be in the direction of first base (the Yanks are looking to replace Veteran Nick Etten). A right-handed hitting catcher and possibly some more pitching are our secondary objectives.

"Right now we have no irons in the fire. We expect to do things at the Los Angeles meetings next month. But please dispel the impression that we are going to rip the club apart. It is, basically, a fine ball team. That it did not do better may be laid to late starts by service returnees."

Eyes of Texas Upon Dyer As Houston Honors Him Today

Houston, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP).—The old home town tomorrow will place verbal laurels on the brow of its favorite athletic son, Eddie Dyer, to climax the 46-year-old St. Louis Cardinal manager's most glorious year in sports.

It is Eddie Dyer day in Houston, where the World Series champion pilot played and coached college sports and later managed the Houston Buffs of the Texas League.

Some 600 Texans, baseball cronies and other friends of the handsome, happy hero will attend a dinner which Eddie today called "a thrilling climax" to his first year as Card mentor.

J. Roy Stockton, sports editor of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, will hold the spotlight on the speaker's rostrum.

Ted Lyons, manager of the Chicago White Sox, whose career has been an amazing parallel of Dyer's, has said he will be here.

Also present will be Former Gov. William P. Hobby, publisher of the Houston Post, who will present gifts to the honorees on behalf of his other admirers.

Beaufard Jester, Governor-elect of Texas, will fly to Houston. Among other guests will be Dizzy Dean, immortal aCrdinal pitcher; Sam Breadon, Card president; Howie Pollet, Ted Wilks and George Munger, Cardinal pitchers; Joff Cross, an infielder, and Doc Weaver, trainer for the team.

In addition big business representatives from over the State have accepted invitations and at Eddie's own request "plenty of my old friends from the days when I wasn't in upper bracket ball," will be present.

Grid Injuries Prove Fatal To 15 So Far

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 6 (AP).—Football has been the direct cause of 15 deaths in the United States this fall, with only two in college games, Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, of Purdue University said today in a preliminary mid-season report.

Dr. Eastwood, who has made an annual study of football fatalities since 1931, said the report covered games through October 31. Only twice in the last five years has there been deaths on collegiate squads.

Of the other 13 fatalities this year, two were on sandlots, two on athletic club teams and nine in high schools.

Mayo of Detroit Agrees to Terms

Detroit, Nov. 6 (AP).—Eddie Mayo has perpetuated the tradition of former Second Baseman Charley Gehringer in being the first Detroit Tiger to sign a new contract.

Before returning to his home in Clifton, N. J., Mayo, who missed most of last season with a back ailment, walked into the Briggs Stadium office and agreed to 1947 terms. Also signed to the active list is Paul Richards, 38-year-old catcher, who had been rumored as a prospect minor league manager.

'Tobacco Bowl' Game Planned

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Lexington Leader reported that a "tobacco bowl" in Lexington, which would match two outstanding collegiate football teams in an annual contest, is being considered by responsible interests.

Larry Shropshire, Leader sports editor, said the contest would be played on the University of Kentuck's Stoll Field, which now has a seating capacity of 32,000.

'Skin Yardage Yield Lowest

The up and coming Chicago Cardinals continue to be the National Football league's No. 1 offensive leader, setting the pace on the basis of yards gained as well as points scored. Defensively Washington and Pittsburgh hold the spotlight, the Redskins being the most difficult team against which to advance and the Steelers the stingiest entry when it comes to surrendering points.

Official statistics released today show the Cardinals gaining ground at the rate of 345.3 yards per game over a span of seven contests, while Washington has held six opponents to an average of 184.8 yards and the Steelers have given up only 10.7 points per contest.

By a queer twist of the figures the Cardinals and Redskins change places in offense and defense on a yardage basis, the Cardinals being fifth on defense with a yield of 252.4 yards per game and the Redskins holding a corresponding position on offense with a mark of 282.6 yards gained per game.

Vanderbilt's Kitchen Police Wins Pimlico Feature Race

Bennings

DEAR FOLKS:

Seems as if the reports on the injuries to Jockey Don Padgett were greatly exaggerated. It turned out he was only stunned. The books for the meeting at Charles Town are out. Jockey Eddie Arcaro will head for California after racing in the East ends. They tell me he has had enough of Florida where he couldn't make a hard eight last winter if you know what I mean. Jockey Patsy Grant is working horses in preparation for Charles Town. The Republican gains in New Jersey won't do racing in that State any good. And it wasn't a little bird who told me that Mr. Big in Maryland racing will be missing when Lane takes office. Horsemen are kicking like steers about the lack of low price claiming races at Pimlico. They say the program is made for big shot horses with the fellows who provide the cards most of the year in Maryland frozen out. When they complain, officials pass the buck according to the horsemen, while trying to make constructive changes in Maryland racing. Why don't somebody eliminate maiden steeplechase events or see that the horses are properly schooled? On the Wednesday program, the grass was flat for miles around where the jumping jockeys hit the ground. See you on the rail.

BILL.

Second race—Reflex Arc could be a longshot winner if sent into action. Palau is a threat. Desert Ruler for the show.

Third race—Ourarms looks best in the jumping event. Fifty-fifty and Similar belong close.

Fourth race—Caliper is a doubtful starter but will be there if started. Knight's Hurry and Royal Foot will be right there.

Fifth race—The entry of Jackawake and Buddy Kenney look like a lock. Love Sonnet and Flysolate are possibilities.

Sixth race—Winter Wheat loves the track and deserves a top chance. Reece will be played. Good Blood can better last.

Seventh race—The entry of Poochanelli and Skippy B is formidable., Ration Book and Woofie belong close to the big money.

Eighth race—One Only to take the top and stay there. He Rolls and Bienrose to chase the top one home.

Best bet—One Only.

Trojan Fleet Second, Four Lengths Back

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 6.—The first stakes winner for the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt stable since Petrify won the Marton Stakes of 1941, Kitchen Police won the $10,000 added Heiser Handicap, sixth and feature race at Pimlico today in galloping style and much to the delight of the form players.

Paying $5.20 for $2, Kitchen Police—a 3-year-old, carrying 120 pounds and opposing older seasoned sprinters—romped to the wire about four panels in front of Bobanet Stable's Trojan Fleet, which was shuffled back in the early furlongs and then closed with good courage. Brookmeade Stable's Music was third and Henry L. Straus' consistent New Moon third.

Fourth Vanderbilt Win

It was the fourth time since the meeting opened last Thursday that the cerise and white Vanderbilt silks have been sen in th winnr's circl. Recently taken over by Trainer Duval Headley, the Vanderbilt string is stabled at the Sagamore Farm.

Ruperto Donoson, who is doing most of the riding for the Vanderbilt stable at Pimlico, sent Kitchen Police right to the front in the short test and his willing mount—the result of a mating of Discovrey, leading sire at Sagamore, and Galley Slave—was a length in front at the half mile marker.

On the turn, Kitchen Police increased his advantage to two lengths and then doubled that margin in the straightaway. The big chestnut turned the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 and appeared to have speed in reserve at the wire.

None Injured

The Waterspread Steeplechase, a maiden affair, saw the riders and horses spread all over the ground. Eleven started and five fell, another losing rider. Miraculously, the jockeys and horses escaped injury.

The winner turned up in H. E. Talbott's Boston Boy. A length back came Mrs. W. Bromlye's Trough Hill to be second, a neck in front of G. H. Bostwick's Army Power. The winner paid $8.50 and was clocked in 4:01 4-5 for the 2 miles.

H. G. Bedwell's Patty Knot caused a lot of worry to holders of the 2 and 11 combination before the judges finally posted her number on the board, a winner by a slim nose over Tennessee Maid. Patty Knot paid $7.00. Baby Kiddie also well backed, finished third.

Rivals in Terp Homecoming . . .

TERRY

I JUST CLOCKED YOU FOR THE MILE, T. LEE! I MUST REMEMBER TO WAGER A FEW BOB THE NEXT TIME YOU START AT WHIFFLETREE DOWNS!
HOW LATE IN THE DAY DO JANE ALLEN AND DEETH CRISPIN HAVE TO WORK ON THAT INVENTORY OF THE STUFF WE ARE TO HAUL OUT OF INDO-CHINA?
WE WEREN'T HIRED TO BREAK BREAD WITH THE CUSTOMERS, TERRY! I MOVE WE GO SOMEWHERE AND TRY A NOSEBAG FOR SIZE!
JANE ALLEN DEFINITELY PROMISED TO HAVE DINNER WITH ME... HEY! THERE'S DEETH, NOW
CHEER'O, LEE AND CHARLES! I WAS ABOUT TO BUZZ YOU, TERRY! JANE AND I JUST POPPED IN FROM OUR CHORES IN THE HINTERLAND! SHE ASKED ME TO TELL YOU SHE'S FRESHENING UP FOR YOUR DINNER ENGAGEMENT
NICE OF YOU TO LET HER OFF SOMETIME BEFORE MIDNIGHT... I DOUBT IF SHE CAN GO TO SLEEP SO SOON AFTER EATING!

JOE PALOOKA

JOE... THESE MEN ARE IN THE MIDDLE OF HARD WORK. THEY'RE SMOKERS AND COWHANDS AND THEY LEFT THEIR WORK... THEY'VE GOT TO GET BACK.
YES, I KNOW, MR. WEAVER. I'M VERY GRATEFUL TO THEM.
I DO TOO. I HAVE MY REPORT TO MAKE.
DO YOU SUPPOSE I COULD GET SOMEBODY TO COME UP HERE WITH ME... I WANT TO KEEP ON THE SEARCH.
I FEEL... I FEEL SHE MIGHT BE ALIVE ... I'LL PAY VERY WELL.
I'D LIKE THELP YOU, PALOOKA. I KIN SPARE A WEEK... BUT THAT'S ALL.

MARY WORTH

WELL! WHAT A DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE, FINDING YOU HERE, CRISTAL!--SHALL WE BREAKFAST TOGETHER?--OR DID I GET UP THREE HOURS EARLY FOR NOTHING?
DO YOU THINK YOUR MOTHER WOULD APPROVE, MR. MANORBORN?... I'M PRACTICALLY A SERVANT, YOU KNOW!
CORRECTIONS, PLEASE!... 1. THE NAME IS VAN! 2. YOU ARE NO MORE A SERVANT THAN ONE OF MOTHER'S DOCTORS!... AND I WANT TO KNOW ALL ABOUT YOU! WERE YOUR PARENTS MUSICAL?... CONCERT PIANISTS, PERHAPS?
IS THERE AN OUTSIDE DOOR OPEN? I SEEM TO FEEL A COLD DRAFT... ON MY SHOULDERS!

MYRTLE

HOW DO YOU LIKE MY NEW HAT, DEAR?
ASK SOMEONE ELSE! I NEVER LIKE A HAT UNTIL I GET USED TO IT!
MR. SMALTZ, DO YOU LIKE MY NEW HAT?
AH, IT IS BEAUTIFUL MY WIFE BOUGHT ONE JUST LIKE IT!
BUT IF MRS. SMALTZ BOUGHT ONE LIKE IT, THAT PROVES IT'S GOOD!
THAT'S NOT THE WAY A WOMAN FIGURES IT!

MICKEY FINN

SO THERE'S GOING TO BE A BIG MEETING OF THE PARTY TONIGHT, EH, UNCLE PHIL?
YEAH--AND HUGO AND ME ARE GONNA CLEAN HOUSE--AND WE'RE STARTIN' WITH THAT GRAFTER, GILHOOLEY!
IT MAY NOT BE AS EASY TO FORCE HIM OUT AS YOU THINK! HE'S BEEN BOSS FOR A LONG TIME!
DON'T WORRY! WITH IGOE THE MAYOR, AND ME THE SHERIFF, THE PARTY WILL HAVE TO DO WHAT WE TELL 'EM!
YOU DON'T THINK IGOE WILL GET COLD FEET--AND NOT WANT TO GO THROUGH WITH IT, DO YOU, PHIL?
IGOE WILL GO THROUGH WITH IT, TOM--HE'S A MAN OF HIS WORD!
WHAT DO YOU THINK I SHOULD SUGGEST FIRST, GILHOOLEY--AFTER I TAKE OFFICE?
A NEW CITY PARK, HUGO--AFTER WE'VE BOUGHT UP ENOUGH OF THE LAND!

DIXIE DUGAN

ARE YOU GOING ON A BUSINESS TRIP--?
MRS. HACKETT TOLD ME NOT TO SAY ANYTHING ABOUT THE TOWN SHE WANTS TO BUY TO ANY-BODY...!
-WHY
-UH
-NO-
GOING FAR?
I ARRIVE AT 11:20 TOMORROW MORNING
SO DO I--! MEBBE WE CAN SHARE TH'SAME TAXI--WHERE DO YOU GO FROM THERE?
I--I DON'T KNOW
HUH?

CHIEF WAHOO and STEVE ROPER

I SEE SONNY BRAWNSKI'S BACK IN UNIFORM AGAIN, COACH JIBRALTA!
YEAH! AND NOT WORTH A HOOT, ROPER!--ALL BROKEN UP ABOUT THAT GIRL!
THE POLICE HAVE DRAGGED THE RIVER ALL DAY! NO SIGN OF THE POOR KID'S BODY!
WELL! THAT'S THE MOST PEP SONNY'S SHOWN TODAY! MAYBE HE---
ONE SIDE, COACH! OUT OF THE WAY!--LET ME THROUGH!
CUPCAKE WALKED PAST THE STADIUM ENTRANCE JUST NOW! LET GO OF ME!--SHE'LL GET AWAY AGAIN!
TAKE IT EASY, BOY!--RUN AND CALL A DOCTOR, STEVE!

WINNIE WINKLE

HUGH HAMMOND, IF THERE IS SOME REASON WHY YOU WON'T TELL ME MORE ABOUT YOU AND EILEEN--JUST FORGET IT! I'LL GO RIGHT HOME AND ---
EASY, PRINCESS! I'LL BARE MY INNERMOST SECRETS! I'LL TELL YOU ALL--RIGHT FROM THE BEGINNING--
WAY BACK IN THE WAR I WAS CAPTURED BY THE JERRYS--- THEY MARCHED ME TO A PRISON CAMP WHERE I STAYED TWO WEEKS--

MARK TRAIL

THAT NIGHT BEN RETURNS TO MARK WHO IS HIDDEN NEAR BLACK JOHN'S PLACE.
BLACK JOHN IS GOING TO MARRY LAURA AND ANDY IS GOING TO FIGHT BRUTE.
WHAT?
WHO'S BRUTE?
WORSE DOG IN WHOLE NORTH... KILLER... HALF WOLF, HALF DEVIL.

DONALD DUCK

ELMO

IT'S AGAINST THE LAW TO COMMIT SUICIDE, YOU NITWIT!
IT IS?
YEAH, AND I SHOULD OF LET YOU CROAK, BUT I DON'T LIKE MY BEAT CLUTTERED UP WITH NO CORPSES
I WOULDN'T WANT TO BE THE REASON FOR YOUR BEAT LOOKING SLOPPY. HERE'S TWENTY FIVE CENTS FOR SAVING ME FROM SUCH A TERRIBLE FATE
THANKS
AND HERE'S YOUR FIFTEEN CENTS CHANGE
I WOULDN'T OF KNOWN I OVERPAID YOU IF YOU HADN'T SO HONEST--THANK YOU!

OZARK IKE

HAW...THEM STOOPID McBATTS AIN'T EXPECTIN' US FATFIELDS TO KICK ON SECUN' DOWN!
HE SLIPPED!...TH' BAWL'S ROLLIN' BACKARDS TOWARD TH' GOAL LINE!
WE GOT IT!...ON TH' ONE-YARD LINE!--THUD DOWN, AN' (GULP) THUTTY-ONE YARDS T' GO!
WELL PULL TH' VANISHIN' BAWL TRICK!

PENNY

AND ELMO IS SO AWFULLY COMINEERING LATELY, PENNY. HE EVEN INSISTS THAT YOU EAT WHATEVER HE ORDERS--YOU'LL HAVE A GHASTLY DATE.
THANKS FOR TELLING ME, JANET.
HELLO, PIGEON, LET'S DIP THE BEAK.
HELLO, ELMO.
TWO STRAWBERRY SUNDAES, WAITER.
I'LL TAKE THE SAME, PLEASE.

DOTTY

DRIPPLE, YOU'VE GOT THESE FIGURES ALL BAWLED UP--NOW WHERE DID YOU GET THIS TOTAL?!
OUT OF YOUR HEAD?!! WHY DON'T YOU USE THE ADDING MACHINE?!
WELL, UH---
--I LIKE TO KEEP MY BRAIN ACTIVE--
YOU LIKE TO KEEP YOUR WHAT ACTIVE?!!

Vanderbilt's Kitchen Police Wins Pimlico Feature Race

DEAR FOLKS:

Seems as if the reports on the injuries to Jockey Don Padgett were greatly exaggerated. It turned out he was only stunned. The books for the meeting at Charles Town are out. Jockey Eddie Arcaro will head for California after racing in the East ends. They tell me he has had enough of Florida where he couldn't make a hard eight last winter if you know what I mean. Jockey Patsy Grant is working horses in preparation for Charles Town. The Republican gains in New Jersey won't do racing in that State any good. And it wasn't a little bird who told me that Mr. Big in Maryland racing will be missing when Lane takes office. Horsemen are kicking like steers about the lack of low price claiming races at Pimlico. They say the program is made for big shot horses with the fellows who provide the cards most of the year in Maryland frozen out. When they complain, officials pass the buck according to the horsemen, while trying to make constructive changes in Maryland racing. Why don't somebody eliminate maiden steeplechase events or see that the horses are properly schooled? On the Wednesday program, the grass was flat for miles around where the jumping jockeys hit the ground. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Newtown appears well placed in opener. Albatross is dangerous. Ginargie may stop.

Second race—Reflex Arc could be a longshot winner if sent into action. Palau is a threat. Desert Ruler for the show.

Third race—Ourarms looks best in the jumping event. Fifty-fifty and Similar belong close.

Fourth race—Caliper is a doubtful starter but will be there if started. Knight's Hurry and Royal Foot will be right there.

Fifth race—The entry of Jackawake and Buddy Kenney look like a lock. Love Sonnet and Flysolate are possibilities.

Sixth race—Winter Wheat loves the track and deserves a top chance. Recce will be played. Good Blood can better last.

Seventh race—The entry of Poochanelli and Skippy B is formidable., Ration Book and Woofie belong close to the big money.

Eighth race—One Only to take the top and stay there. He Rolls and Blenrose to chase the top one home.

Best bet—One Only.

Trojan Fleet Second, Four Lengths Back

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 6.—The first stakes winner for the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt stable since Petrify won the Marton Stakes of 1941, Kitchen Police won the $10,000 added Heiser Handicap, sixth and feature race at Pimlico today in galloping style and much to the delight of the form players.

Paying $5.20 for $2, Kitchen Police—a 3-year-old, carrying 120 pounds and opposing older seasoned sprinters—romped to the wire about four panels in front of Bobanet Stable's Trojan Fleet, which was shuffled back in the early furlongs and then closed with good courage. Brookmeade Stable's Music was third and Henry L. Straus' consistent New Moon third.

Fourth Vanderbilt Win

It was the fourth time since the meeting opened last Thursday that the cerise and white Vanderbilt silks have been sen in th winnr's circl. Recently taken over by Trainer Duval Headley, the Vanderbilt string is stabled at the Sagamore Farm.

Ruperto Donoson, who is doing most of the riding for the Vanderbilt stable at Pimlico, sent Kitchen Police right to the front in the short test and his willing mount—the result of a mating of Discovrey, leading sire at Sagamore, and Galley Slave—was a length in front at the half mile marker.

On the turn, Kitchen Police increased his advantage to two lengths and then doubled that margin in the straightaway. The big chestnut turned the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 and appeared to have speed in reserve at the wire.

None Injured

The Waterspread Steeplechase, a maiden affair, saw the riders and horses spread all over the ground. Eleven started and five fell, another losing rider. Miraculously, the jockeys and horses escaped injury.

The winner turned up in H. E. Talbott's Boston Boy. A length back came Mrs. W. Bromley's Trough Hill to be second, a neck in front of G. H. Bostwick's Army Power. The winner paid $8.50 and was clocked in 4:01 4-5 for the 2 miles.

H. G. Bedwell's Patty Knot caused a lot of worry to holders of the 2 and 11 combination before the judges finally posted her number on the board, a winner by a slim nose over Tennessee Maid. Patty Knot paid $7.00. Baby Kiddie also well backed, finished third.

Rivals in Terp Homecoming . . .

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

I JUST CLOCKED YOU FOR THE MILE, T. LEE! I MUST REMEMBER TO WAGER A FEW BOB THE NEXT TIME YOU START AT WHIFFLETREE DOWNS!
HOW LATE IN THE DAY DO JANE ALLEN AND DEETH CRISPIN HAVE TO WORK ON THAT INVENTORY OF THE STUFF WE ARE TO HAIL OUT OF HIDO-CHINA?
WE WEREN'T HIRED TO BREAK BREAD WITH THE CUSTOMERS, TERRY! I MOVE WE GO SOMEWHERE AND TRY A MOSEBAG FOR SIZE!
JANE ALLEN DEFINITELY PROMISED TO HAVE DINNER WITH ME... HEY! THERE'S DEETH, NOW
CHEER'O, LEE AND CHARLES! I WAS ABOUT TO BUZZ YOU, TERRY! JANE AND I JUST POPPED IN FROM OUR CHORES IN THE HINTERLAND! SHE ASKED ME TO TELL YOU SHE'S FRESHENING UP FOR YOUR DINNER ENGAGEMENT.
NICE OF YOU TO LET HER OFF SOMETIME BEFORE MIDNIGHT... I DOUBT IF SHE CAN GO TO SLEEP SO SOON AFTER EATING!

DONALD DUCK

JOE PALOOKA

JOE... THESE MEN ARE IN THE MIDDLE OF HARD WORK. THEY'RE RANCHERS AND COWHANDS AND THEY LEFT THEIR WORK. THEY'VE GOT TO GET BACK.
YES, I KNOW, MR. WEAVER. I'M VERY GRATEFUL TO THEM.
I DO, TOO. I HAVE MY REPORT TO MAKE.
DO YOU SUPPOSE I COULD GET SOMEBODY TO COME UP HERE WITH ME... I WANT TO KEEP ON THE SEARCH.
I FEEL... I FEEL SHE MIGHT BE ALIVE ... I'LL PAY VERY WELL.
I'D LIKE THELP YOU, PALOOKA. I KIN SPARE A WEEK... BUT THAT'S ALL.

MARY WORTH

WELL! WHAT A DELIGHTFUL SURPRISE, FINDING YOU HERE, CRYSTAL!--SHALL WE BREAKFAST TOGETHER?--OR DID I GET UP THREE HOURS EARLY FOR NOTHING?
DO YOU THINK YOUR MOTHER WOULD APPROVE, MR. MAHORBORN?... I'M PRACTICALLY A SERVANT, YOU KNOW!
CORRECTIONS, PLEASE!... 1. THE NAME IS VAN! 2. YOU ARE NO MORE A SERVANT THAN ONE OF MOTHER'S DOCTORS!... AND I WANT TO KNOW ALL ABOUT YOU! WERE YOUR PARENTS MUSICAL?... CONCERT PIANISTS, PERHAPS?
IS THERE AN OUTSIDE DOOR OPEN? I SEEM TO FEEL A COLD DRAFT... ON MY SHOULDERS!

MYRTLE

HOW DO YOU LIKE MY NEW HAT, DEAR?
ASK SOMEONE ELSE! I NEVER LIKE A HAT UNTIL I GET USED TO IT!
MR. SMALTZ, DO YOU LIKE MY NEW HAT?
AH, IT IS BEAUTIFUL MY WIFE BOUGHT ONE JUST LIKE IT!
BUT IF MRS. SMALTZ BOUGHT ONE LIKE IT, THAT PROVES IT'S GOOD!
THAT'S NOT THE WAY A WOMAN FIGURES IT!

MICKEY FINN

SO THERE'S GOING TO BE A BIG MEETING OF THE PARTY TONIGHT, EH, UNCLE PHIL?
YEAH--AND HUGO AND ME ARE GONNA CLEAN HOUSE--AND WE'RE STARTIN' WITH THAT GRAFTER, GILMOOLEY!
IT MAY NOT BE AS EASY TO FORCE HIM OUT AS YOU THINK! HE'S BEEN BOSS FOR A LONG TIME!
DON'T WORRY! WITH IGOE THE MAYOR, AND ME THE SHERIFF, THE PARTY WILL HAVE TO DO WHAT WE TELL 'EM!
YOU DON'T THINK IGOE WILL GET COLD FEET--AND NOT WANT TO GO THROUGH WITH IT, DO YOU, PHIL?
IGOE WILL GO THROUGH WITH IT, TOM--HE'S A MAN OF HIS WORD!
A NEW CITY PARK, HUGO--AFTER WE'VE BOUGHT UP ENOUGH OF THE LAND!

DIXIE DUGAN

ARE YOU GOING ON A BUSINESS TRIP--?
MRS. HACKETT TOLD ME NOT TO SAY ANYTHING ABOUT THE TOWN SHE WANTS TO BUY TO AMY. BOBBY--!
WHY--UH--NO
GOING FAR?
I ARRIVE AT 11:20 TOMORROW MORNING
SO DO I--! MEBBE WE CAN SHARE TH'SAME TAXI--WHERE DO YOU GO FROM THERE?

Young Love Has Two Flies in the Ointment: Girl Disapproves Man's Interest in Hunting, He Doesn't Share Her Fondness for Dancing

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man of 22, very much in love with a lovely girl of 19. In most matters we are very much in accord and, as a rule, enjoy the same things. She has an excellent character and enjoys a good time. I think I am an average boy, subject to pretty much the same hopes and desires of most boys my age.

Our trouble is this: It so happens that I am very much inclined to outdoor life and greatly enjoy hunting and fishing. And she just can't understand my love of hunting. As you know, the duck season is approaching and I have a blind in the river. To get real satisfaction out of this sport I have to devote a great deal of time to it, and consequently, a little less time to my fiancee. Must I give up this pleasure entirely in order to make her happy?

She Goes Dancing With Girls Lately

OF COURSE no one is perfect, and she has her grievances against me, too. She loves to dance and is a beautiful dancer. I dance passably well, but I don't have the love of it that she does. However, when she wants to go to dances I am glad to take her, but recently she has expressed her desire to go to dances with her girl friends instead of me.

I don't mind her going skating with girl friends, but I have always hated to see girls at a dance unescorted, and I am afraid that in some way this may reflect upon her good name,— although her conduct is always exemplary and that of a perfect lady. Am I right or wrong in my views on this subject? Please advise soon. C. F.

Hunting Isn't Very Admirable

DEAR C. F.: I can sympathize with the girl's emotional allergy to your love of hunting. From childhood I have wondered how so-called civilized folk could find pleasure in preying upon and destroying other forms of life,—in the name of "outdoor sport."

Take duck hunting, for instance: What are you doing, when you stop to think of it? You are out there skulking and sloshing around, inviting pneumonia, playing primitive man stalking his food, though your belly is full,—and your bloodthirsty game and callous aim is to decoy travel-weary ducks within slaughter range. After you've tricked the ducks to their death, what have you accomplished, really? Nothing to slap yourself on the back about, that I can see.

In essence, I suppose, the enthusiasm of certain men for this and similar forms of "sport" is a psychological safety valve for draining off, in "respectable" form, a secret spring of predatory, destructive, sadist impulses hidden in the subconscious,—which is our unsuspected legacy from cruel, almost brainless, jungle ancestors.

Outgrow Hunting, Improve the Race

AS BETWEEN hunting for a pastime and going berserk on the social scene, we'll all vote in favor of hunting, of course,—when destructive impulses strain at the leash. But the eager huntsman, devoted to his sport, would do well to probe the question: What's the shooting all about? When he finds the answer in himself and proceeds to treat it intelligently, seeking constructive patterns of self expression, he will have improved the quality of the human race.

So much for duck hunting. If your fiancee disapproves of it in principles, so do I. However, if she's merely fuming against your neglect of her, when you're out shooting, that's another matter entirely. And in that case I would say: If you can't string along together in sweet content, mutual deference and perfect trust on a "live-and-let-live" basis, you are not complementary associates and shouldn't marry.

About the dancing: Your fiancee is putting a markdown price on herself, in going to dances with a bevy of girls. You are right to deplore the practice. But her recent preference on this score strikes me as the handwriting on the wall. Consciously or unconsciously, she is shopping around for another Romeo,—one whose ideas of fun will be identical with her own, she hopes. In effect, she's rejecting you. You'd have to start from scratch, without sermon or argument, if you cared to re-sell yourself, I think. M. H.

Roll, Rock Off Those Pounds In Hip-Slimming Exercises

By Ida Jean Kain

ROLLING is the answer to most hip problems. Of course, some girls need to back up their exercises with diet. Hips are heft when the weight exceeds normal by 10 or more pounds, and that calls for calorie cutting. But for the nearly normal weights and the thin girls with hip bulges, rolling hits the spot.

The hip slimming technique is to make sure it does hit the spot. For hips that bustle out in back, a straight roll is downright effective provided the posterior problem is not caused by poor posture. An easy way to find out is to stand against the wall, heels 3 inches out. Pulling up and in, flatten the small of the back against the wall. If there is barely room to slip the flat of your hand between you and the wall, the cause is not swayback and the following exercise will roll off the bulge:

Lie on the floor, arms extended at shoulder level, knees bent slightly, heels together. Now roll the hips away over to the left side, then roll them away back as far as possible to the right side, always keeping both shoulders firmly on the floor. Relax through the waistline; this is a hip-smoother, not a waist-slimmer. Be sure to bring the weight to bear on the bulge.

Back to our posture test . . . if the gap between you and the wall was big enough to accommodate your fist, then swayback is your trouble and a different exercise technique is required. Your problem is posture.

Lie on your back, small of back pressed against floor, knees flexed and up over chest. Now, vigorously jerk alternate knees higher up toward chest, continuing slowly for 12 counts. This exercise has a double purpose, to tone the front muscles and straighten out the small of the back, reducing that sharp incurve which causes the hips to bustle out. Sitting in a chair, always pull up and in with the abdominal muscles, and touch small of back to back of chair. In walking, keep hips pulled down and under, and the abdominal muscles pulled up and in.

Some girls write in and apologetically inquire how to develop their hips. They imply that they know it sounds queer, but they haven't enough hips. Their problem is poor distribution; the derriere is flat where it should be curved. It's a "droopy" effect, as one girl aptly described it. Well, exercise normalizes.

Lie face downward on floor and raise alternate legs from the hips, high in air, counting 10, later 20 counts. To effectively tone the gluteus muscles on back of hips do not roll toward the side as alternate legs are raised. Keep knees straight.

A rocking exercise helps to wear down the "droopy effect." Sit on floor, leaning at the angle that brings the weight to bear on the bulge, then rock across hips to one side and back to the other side; 10 counts, later 20.

The Service Set—

By Bessie Hackett

LETTERS received from abroad tell of exciting plans afoot for a real American celebration of Thanksgiving Day, the first since service wives have been permitted overseas. Now all Army officers or wives setting out for Europe in the near future are hoping they'll get there well before November 28.

In Frankfurt festivities will center at the Officers' Club in famous Kronberg Castle, where a broadcast of the Army-Navy football game will vie for interest with the traditional turkey dinner.

One person eagerly anticipating the party is Mary Harries, widow of Col. Herbert L. Harries, who died on Corregidor. Strike-bound for several weeks, Mary went up to New York the other day and expects to start out for Germany Saturday on a ship with the rather imaginative name, Marine Flasher. Mrs. Harries is headed for Frankfurt, where she'll be the guest of Col. and Mrs. A. H. Dickerson. "There's just one drawback," she wailed. "I'm sailing from New York right in the middle of the Army-Notre Dame game."

Another person who expects to join in a real American Thanksgiving in Germany is Mrs. William H. Greear, who found "sailing orders" waiting for her the other evening when she returned from visiting relatives in Texas. Leaving Washington tomorrow, she'll board the steamer Ernie Pyle in New York next Wednesday en route to Wetzlar, where Colonel Greear is stationed with the Third Constabulary Regiment.

PARTIES have already started for Vice Admiral and Mrs. Louis E. Denfeld, who'll be leaving Washington come the New Year. Admiral Denfeld, chief of Navy personnel, will relieve Admiral John H. Towers as commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet with headquarters in Honolulu.

Last night Admiral and Mrs. Denfeld were honor guests at a cocktail party and buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Hector Aring and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simmons at the former's suite in Hotel 2400. There was lots of Navy gold braid on hand and a number of civilian friends as well.

Among those attending the party were the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Admiral and Mrs. James L. Holloway, Admiral and Mrs. A. W. Radford, Admiral and Mrs. G. F. Hussey, Admiral and Mrs. Carl Cotter, Admiral and Mrs. H. G. Bowen, Admiral and Mrs. E. L. Cochrane, Admiral and Mrs. Earle Mills, Mrs. Walter Buck (the admiral is out of town), Admiral and Mrs. John J. Manning, Admiral and Mrs. Joseph Jelley, Admiral and Mrs. T. L. Sprague, Admiral and Mrs. H. D. Nuber, Capt. and Mrs. Walter Warlick, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Les Cassidy of South Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Parker Fairlamb and Mr. and Mrs. George Schoeneman.

Receiving congratulations were Capt. Alexander C. Kidd, USN, retired, who came down from New York for the party with his fiancee, Miss Phyllis Serapin. The couple will be married in Gotham on November 26. Captain Kidd is the brother of the late Admiral Isaac C. Kidd, killed aboard the USS Arizona in the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

Guests at Quarters No. 2, Army War College, for several weeks are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mullen of St. Louis, who are visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold.

Your Questions On Homemaking

I applied bright nail polish to the plastic frame of my eyeglasses. Ordinary polish remover does not take the polish off and has left the frame sticky. Can you suggest anything else? F. R.

Wipe the frame with a little banana oil and then with carbon tetrachloride.

What polish or wax is there that will preserve the glossy finish of chrome plating on a car? How can rust be removed from such plating? Is carbon tetrachloride safe to remove spots from the upholstery of a car? If so, how do you use it? Will it leave any odor? A. L. R.

Auto supply stores will be able to sell you a metal polish for the chrome plating. Rust occurs only when the plating wears off and then you could take off the rust with steel wool and give the accessories a coat of shellac. When you polish your car put some on the plating, too.

Carbon tetrachloride is safe to remove spots from upholstery. Pour some on a cloth and rub the spots, working outward in all directions from the center of the spot. Be careful not to soak the upholstery so that the filling becomes wet. After the cleaning fluid evaporates there will be no odor.

Can you please tell me how to remove orange juice stains from baby gowns, shirts and diapers? M. N.

Treat fresh stains at once with lukewarm suds. If they are allowed to set, more drastic measures must be taken.

Treat white cotton and linen with lemon juice and place in bright sunlight to bleach. Or stretch stained portions over bowl of hot water and apply Javelle water. Or put a few drops of ammonia in a bowl of boiling water, then stretch the stains over the bowl and apply hydrogen peroxide with a medicine dropper.

Light stains will sometimes respond when treated with cool water and glycerine. Sponge with water, rub in glycerine, let stand half hour and rinse with clear water.

Will you please tell me how to keep weevils out of dried lima beans? L. L. D.

Immediately destroy any beans in which you've found weevils and scrub your cupboards thoroughly. Then use a good household insect spray and scrub again. When you buy new supplies, take them out of the package and put into a tightly covered can or jar.

MRS. W. D. ABRAMOVICH
. . . Orange blossom coronet

Abramovich—Pessagno

Married October 26 at St. Francis Xavier Church by the Rev. Raymond B. Moriarity, were Miss Elizabeth C. Pessagno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pessagno, Washington, and William D. Abramovich.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore white brocaded taffeta with a finger-tip veil held by a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried lilies and roses on her ivory prayer book. Maid of honor was Miss Virginia Quade, wearing blue taffeta, and flower girl was the bride's cousin, Miss Joan Whittington, costumed in peach taffeta with an old-fashioned bouquet. Joseph A. Pessagno, the bride's brother, acted as best man, and her other two brothers, Dan and Elmer Pessagno, were ushers.

The bride is a graduate of St. Patrick's Academy. Mr. Abramovich has been discharged from the Marine Corps after six years' service.

After a wedding trip, the couple will live in Washington.

Mrs. Frank Here

Mrs. Jack Frnak of Corinth, Miss., is here for an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fischer, at the Park Towers.

Stretch a Pot of Coffee

By Virginia Guild

America's favorite beverage may have zoomed in price but each pound of coffee that you buy can be stretched. To obtain the maximum amount of flavor from a pound, every brew should be given careful and exacting measurement. The dump-method is a temptation when in a hurry. It seems faster at the time but the results are apt to be varied. Also the type of grind plays an important part. For most coffee makers, a finely-ground coffee will yield more cups of good coffee per pound. In some cases, a filter paper must be used to take advantage of this fact.

Keep in Refrigerator

The last few drops of coffee left in the pot hold abundant flavor. They never should be thrown away. Accumulate them in a glass jar as shown here. Cover to hold all the original flavor and store in the refrigerator until ready to use. Coffee need never be brewed fresh for that bread, cake or unusual dessert recipe. Use your leftover coffee instead.

If the meal has been a heavy one, a quick dessert can be made by combining sweetened coffee with vanilla flavoring and frozen to an ice. Serve it in tall sherbet glasses, as shown above, and top with a tablespoon of brandy and a touch of confectioners' sugar. A few one-bite cookies coupled with this dessert will make it party fare.

French toast made with coffee instead of milk is a popular breakfast dish when served with honey. Or a coffee date bread can be made to vary the lunch-box meal. Eke out the last drop of coffee by using it to flavor crunchy ice cream made by freezing it with whipped evaporated milk and grapenuts. Creamy coffee custard can be served as pudding or sauce or used to fill golden brown popovers for an unusual dessert. Serve these desserts with a sprinkling of grated sweet chocolate.

With and In Pie

The reserve coffee supply will add flavor to pumpkin pie if it is used to replace half the milk. Also news for the kitchen is the feather-light and flavor coffee chiffon pie.

True coffee cake made with coffee is a dressed-up layer cake for a dinner dessert. Combined with chocolate it becomes mocha and is probably the best known use of coffee to the homemaker. One of these cakes can be spread with coffee fluffy icing made with white of an egg, corn syrup and coffee whipped to a froth. Here is a recipe that makes a coffee dessert that is different:

- 3 tablespoons butter.
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch.
- ½ cup strong black coffee.
- ¼ cup top milk.
- Dash of salt.
- 1/3 cup sugar.
- 4 eggs, separated.
- ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Melt butter and blend in cornstarch. Add coffee and milk and cook over low heat until thickened. Combine with salt and sugar and cook over hot water 10 minutes. Add to egg yolks, beating well. Blend in vanilla and fold in stiffly beaten whites. Turn into lightly oiled casserole and place in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until an inserted knife comes out clean. Yield: Six portions.

Note from teacher

My Jimmie brought a note from school . . . Relating certain facts . . . About the time the teached had . . . With Jimmie and his tacks . . . It seems the youngster had a way . . . Of puting them around . . . So there would be a sudden shout . . . Whenever they were found . . . Well, I informed him I was grieved . . . to have a wayward son . . . Who sacrificed his studies for . . . A bit of foolish fun . . . I frowned as sternly as I could . . . And told him he should be . . . A better boy if he would make . . . His mark in history . . . But when I signed the little note . . . That he was told to bring . . . I smiled as I remembered how . . . I did that very thing.

ARE YOU JUST A PLAYTHING of NATURE?

Nature may endow you with breathtaking beauty, a lovely curvaceous figure. She may bestow gifts on you that make you a brilliant actress, a leader in your class at college, sought after at dances, or a charming wife and mother.

Yes, Nature may do all this. And yet you may find your face mockingly slapped if you suffer these distressing symptoms, which so many unfortunate girls and women do.

Something You Should Not Joke About!

So if female functional monthly disturbances are causing you to suffer from pain, nervous distress and feel weak, restless, so cranky and irritable that you almost turn into a 'she-devil'—on such days—THIS IS SOMETHING YOU SHOULDN'T JOKE ABOUT. Start right away—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. And don't forget—Pinkham's Compound DOES MORE than relieve such monthly pain. This great medicine ALSO relieves accompanying nervous tension, irritability, those tired-out feelings—when due to this cause. Taken regularly thruout month—Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such distress—a very sensible thing to do. Just see if you, too, don't remarkably benefit!

For free sample bottle tear this out and send with name and address to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, 83 Cleveland St., Lynn, Mass.
